Rule by Murder
What Would the Army Do?
The Value of Advice
Unity, Not Criticism

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

Count Munster, representing Hanover at the Court of St. Petersburg and studying conditions there when Russia was changing, from an Asiatic to a European country, declared that Russian civilization was "nearly artificial," and gave this brief description of the Russian constitution, "absolutism tempered by assassination."

What would the diplomat who studied Russia five years after Napoleon's fall at Waterloo say if he could now study the "government" in Spain? That has been a government of "assassination" pure and simple. For weeks there has been no other government enforced, and the assassination is the most hideous that has been seen in any country calling itself civilized since the darkest part of the middle ages. Photographs are published showing nuns that have been assassinated, their stiffened corpses stood up against walls for the mockery of the crowd, with numerous corpses or skeletons of nuns and priests dug up from church cemeteries propped up against the entrances of churches. Indignities to which women devoted to the religious life have been subjected in Spain could not even be printed.

One individual, eager to show his contempt for all religion, made a mistake, serious for himself. Putting on the costume of a murdered priest, he entered the pulpit of a church and began a mock sermon for the amusement of his friends. Another individual, entering the church, taking it all seriously, shot the imitation priest dead.

In every European country there is one or ten thousand convinced that they could run the country better than it is being run and willing, instantly, to try the experiment. This situation recalls Rostand's play in which a turkey gobbler said, "Without doubt, I can teach crowing; for I gobble."

Many a gobbling turkey is destined to discover that gobbling is not crowing, before these European troubles are over.

In Europe nobody feels absolutely sure of anything. Serious Frenchmen ask "Will there be another French revolution?"

Professor Mornet, who wrote "The intellectual origin of the French revolution," says: "Today, intellectually, the next revolution, soon to come, is far more definitely prepared than was the old one in 1789."

Others, in various nations, ask themselves:

"What about our army? What are the views of its officers? To what extent could the officers hold, control and direct their men? Is our army really a great fighting machine to uphold the existing government, or could it suddenly be transformed into a dictator-led weapon to drive out government and establish dictatorship, or Communism?"

The wise Montaigne, who lived in his fine old tower with Greek and Latin quotations on the ceilings, and knew enough to stay there, wrote in the French language, Un bon conseil vaut souvent mieux qu'un riche cadeau. Which means, "Good advice is often more valuable than a rich gift."

It is, undoubtedly, although it is not accepted, usually, with the same alacrity.

The Greeks wrote on their temple their meden agan, the warning "not too much, not too little." At times, that is bad advice. Just now no nation, especially ours, can have too much of efficient defense, or too little of false economy.

Goethe, the greatest German, gave this advice to those that would live happily:

"To keep young, every day read a poem, hear a choice bit of music, view a fine painting, and, if possible, do a good action. Man's highest merit always is as much as possible to rule external circumstances and as little as possible to let himself be ruled by them."

That would be very helpful to an impartial individual living in Spain just at this moment. The last part of the advice is always good, probably, but not easily followed.

$1,000,000 Suit Heard:

Pickford 'Kidnap' Report Missing

The original report in the "Mary Pickford case" in Boston in 1934 is missing from the files at Boston police headquarters.

This was testified to today at opening of a federal court hearing here in connection with a $1,000,000 suit brought against the film star by J. Raymond Cornell, of Wellesley.

Cornell alleges he was the man to whom Miss Pickford referred when she complained of an unpleasant experience at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, expressed a fear of kidnapers and asked for police protection.

A purported copy of the original report made on Miss Pickford's complaint was introduced at the hearing. It contained no mention of kidnapers or a feared kidnaping.

Mother, Boy, Slain, Sister Dying

Shrewsbury, [illegible], Aug. 27 (AP)—The body of Mrs. Perley Newton, 45, and her two children, their heads pierced by bullets, were found today in a lonely farm house, whose master has been missing since Monday.

The two children were hurried 10 miles to a Rutland hospital where Gardon, 14, died shortly afterward. His sister, Elizabeth, 10, probably would not recover, doctors said.

Selectman Barneyl Smith came upon the tragedy when a milkman informed him there appeared to be something wrong at the farm.

ROOSEVELT TO ATTEND FUNERAL

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP) — The White House said today that President Roosevelt would arrange to attend the funeral of Secretary Dern

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP) — Sinking into a coma after a prolonged illness, George Henry Dern, 64-year-old Secretary of War in the Roosevelt cabinet, died here today of cardiac and kidney complications following an influenza attack.

He passed away at 10:55 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, at Walter Reed hospital. Six members of his family were near his hand as he died.

Word immediately was telegraphed to President Roosevelt, who at the time was nearing Bismarck, N. D., aboard his special train on a drouth inspection trip.

Simultaneously, orders were drafted for army posts throughout the country to lower their flags to half staff and to fire a mourning gun every half hour after reveille tomorrow. After the blowing of retreat tomorrow night, 19-gun salutes will be fired at all posts.

ARMY TO PAY HOMAGE

Plans for the funeral of the Secretary of War were not immediately announced. It was indicated his body would be taken to Utah, where only four years ago he occupied the governor's chair, since the law specifies that only men who served in the military forces can be buried in Arlington National Cemetery here.

All of the army will pay him homage, however, with officers wearing mourning bands and black crepe upon their sabres for 30 days. A guard of honor was ordered immediately to the hospital.

There were scores of expressions of sorrow immediately after word of Dern's passing spread through the capital. Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, who becomes acting secretary, said "the nation has suffered an irreparable loss."

Members of the secretary's family at the hospital were his widow, Mrs. Dern, his daughters, Mrs. Harry Baxter and Miss Elizabeth Dern, and his sons, William, John and James.

Dr. Fritz Meyer, noted German heart specialist, called here from Boston at the direction of President Roosevelt, was in consultation with army doctors just before the war secretary died.

During the night, it was disclosed, Dern had been placed under an oxygen tent in an effort to prolong his life.

Dern's death, friends said, followed a general physical breakdown originating in a severe attack of influenza when he was Governor of Utah five years ago, and from which he never fully recovered.

Since then he has suffered from recurrent influenza attacks and

KNOX IN N. H. HITS DEAL'S TREACHERY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Hampton Beach, N. H., Aug. 27—Colonel Frank Knox, Republican candidate for Vice-President, in an address here today, asserted that the great issue of the campaign is the restoration in America of the ancient principles of sound government, honesty, thrift and self-reliance in national life.

The same indictment New Englanders in Colonial days drew against the foreign oppressor, he declared, is appropriate today against the Roosevelt administration.

This, he said, was creation of a multitude of new offices and the sending of swarms of officers to harass the people.

He accused the New Deal of despotism, trickery and treachery.

Wares, such as a "new revolution" against "economic royalists," such as the New Deal is featuring, he held cannot be sold to New Englanders.

While the American people are emotional, they "are not fools," he declared.

Under the reign of the royalists, he said, the small merchants and business men had no chance, but it was not until 1933 that the small business man had his private business run by the government of the United States. The first step taken by the present government, he emphasized, was the suspension of the laws against extortionate and illegal monopoly. No new enterprises have been born or new jobs created under the New Deal, he declared.

He accused the New Deal of building up an executive power which destroys the protection provided by the courts and restraints provided by Congress. Its future plans are an absolute blank, he said, and the country is weary of it all.

TAXPAYERS PAY FOR ICKES' BOOK

(Special to American Newspapers, Inc.)

New York, Aug. 27—How "Honest Harold" Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and Administrator of the Public Works Administration, used the taxpayers' money for personal purposes has just come to light.

Under contract to MacMillan & Company, book publishers, to write the book, "Back to Work," "Honest Harold" assigned two employes of the publicity department of the Public Works Administration to prepare the volume. "Honest Harold" will take the profits, if any, he says.

One of Ickes' "ghosts" was an alien, in the country only a few months, on a visitors' permit. He received a per diem of $10 in taxpayers' money for his services on the book, and later returned to the payrolls and received $4000 on another project.

POPE PIUS ILL FROM WORRY OVER SPAIN

(Copyright, 1936, Associated Press

Vatican City, Aug. 27—Prelates disclosed tonight that Pope Pius XI has become so weakened from worry over the Spanish situation that he is scarcely able to rise from his throne at the close of audiences.

The increasing heaviness of his limbs, the prelates said, might soon make it necessary for the 79-year-old holy father to be carried from one part of the apostolic palaces to another.

His brother, Fermo, suffered from the same malady and a year before his death, several years ago, was unable to walk.

Woman Vanishes After Nantasket Beach Party

(Picture on Page 13)

The missing woman is Miss Josephine Drigotas, 28, the daughter of John Drigotas, Auburn, Me., real estate operator.

Miss Drigotas was visiting in Boston with a girl companion, Miss Shirley Arnold, also of Auburn, at the home of Mrs. Louis S. Walne. With Miss Gladys Robinson, a friend of Mrs. Walne, they were members of a party at Nantasket Beach yesterday afternoon.

Describing her friend's strange disappearance, Miss Arnold told a Boston Evening American reporter:

"We were walking along the beach about 4 o'clock. Josephine was picking shells in the sand for souvenirs. Then Mrs. Walne pointed out a shell to me. When we stood up again, there was absolutely no trace of Josephine."

Police were informed of the young woman's disappearance after an all-night search of the beach by the three women failed to uncover any clue.

Neither Miss Arnold nor Mrs. Walne could advance any reason or any incident of the past few days to account for her disappearance.

FULL TEXT OF GOV. LANDON'S SPEECH AT BUFFALO

Buffalo, Aug. 27 (US)—The text of Governor Alfred M. Landon's address here follows:

Tonight, I want to talk about the financial problems of our federal government and their effect upon us as individuals. In other words, I'm going to talk about our government as a spender of part of the money we work so hard to earn.

This is a proper approach to the question, in my judgment, because the government has no money except the money its gets from us.

There are some people who seem to believe that the government can create money. This is not true. All it can create are promises to pay money. This is what it does when it issues paper money or sells bonds.

In principle, this is similar to what we do when we open a charge account at a store. We get something now and promise to pay for it later. If we charge more things than we can pay for, our promises to pay become worthless. The same is true of government.

So, if we are to be realistic in our thinking about government finance, we must think of the government as almost a member of our family—a member to whom day by day, week by week, year by year, we must give part of what we receive in our pay envelope or part of the crops we raise.

We must remember that every time the government spends a dollar, that dollar will have to be paid by us or we must pass the debt on to be paid by our children.

No parents like to leave their children a heritage of debts and mortgages, but the creation of a staggering public debt closes the door of opportunity to the youth of America, just as certainly as a staggering private debt.

We must face the issue squarely, the present administration's daily mounting deficits are closing the door of opportunity to your children and to my children.

We must not lose sight of the fact that a public debt is just as much a liability to each and every individual as a private debt.

The fundamental principles of government finance are exactly the same common sense principles that we follow in the handling of our own family finances.

So long as our government follows these principles our people will prosper. They will be able to weather depression, drouth and other disasters. But if our government disregards these principles, it squanders our resources and destroys the public credit.

Now, what are these principles? In broadest terms there are four of them.

The government must guard and preserve its source of income.

Fairness in Taxes

The government must make sure that it gets a dollar's worth for every dollar it spends.

The government must not get in the habit of spending more than it receives.

Finally, the government must prepare for the rainy day.

These, in brief, are the four great principles which a prudent, foresighted head of a family follows in the handling of his own finances.

They are the same four great principles which a prudent, foresighted government must follow if it is to meet the financial demands made upon it by an increasingly complex civilization.

Now let us examine each of the four principles in turn:

The first is the question of guarding and preserving the source of income. Fundamentally this is a question of the fairness of the kind of taxes that are levied. Are they direct taxes levied without regard to our ability to contribute to the support of the government?

GOVERNOR ALFRED M. LANDON
During Buffalo Speech

It has always been my belief that the government should raise the major portion of its revenue from direct taxes levied on the net incomes of individuals and corporations.

When this is done, everyone pays his fair share and knows just how much the government is costing him.

I have constantly worked for legislation in Kansas to prevent concealment of the cost of government.

On the other hand, if the major portion of the government's income is obtained from indirect and hidden taxes—taxes upon such things as food, clothing, gasoline and cigarettes—then the main burden falls upon those of small income and the cost of government is hidden.

In this case, it is the wage-earner, the salaried worker, the farmer and the small business man, who have to pay most of the bill.

Now, let us turn to the record and see just who is paying the cost of our government.

What do the figures of the Treasury Department show? They show that in the year 1932 59 cents out of every dollar collected by our federal government, was secured from direct taxes. The other 41 cents was collected from indirect and hidden taxes, paid, for the most part, by people with incomes of $25 a week or less.

That was for 1932. Four years later what do we find? We find that 51 cents out of every dollar collected by the federal government came from hidden taxes.

Burden on Poor

In other words, the share of the cost of government falling mainly on those with incomes of $25 a week or less has increased 25 per cent during the three years of the present administration.

They are paying far more than their rightful share of the cost of government. Any housewife can tell you this, because the housewife knows, better than anybody else, how the mounting cost of living is curtailing the comforts of the home. And you cannot long fool her with the pretense that only the rich will pay.

This increase has come despite the fact that the tax rates on incomes of individuals and corporations have been raised. It has come despite the fact that they are paying far more actual money into the treasury than they did in 1932.

SMALL BUSINESS, JOB HOLDER HARMED BY INDUSTRY LEVY, KANSAN CHARGES

In other words, the larger payments by well-to-do individuals and corporations have not been enough to cover the waste and extravagance of this administration.

What is the result? Those of our citizens with small incomes have had to pay an increased proportion of the cost of the federal government.

And just how have those with small incomes paid more? When we consider the government as a whole—federal, state and local—we find that they have paid in a thousand different ways. Take bread for example.

When we buy a loaf of bread for 10c. we pay about 8c. for the bread. The other two cents goes for taxes.

If we smoke a package of cigarettes a day we pay $22 a year in taxes.

It is in all our spending. We cannot buy a stitch of clothing without the government taking in taxes a part of the money we pay out.

We cannot buy an ounce of food at our grocery store without being taxed to support the government.

We cannot go to a movie, or to a baseball game, or ride in an automobile without this invisible tax arm of government reaching out and taking a part of the money we spend. This has been a growing tendency of government in recent years.

Most of these taxes, it is true, are hidden so deeply that we cannot see them. But the taxes are there just as truly as they are in the sales tax on gasoline. They cost just as much, and are just as real, as they would be if they were taken right out of our pay envelopes.

These hidden taxes—federal, state and local—amount to about 20 cents out of every dollar we spend. In the case of the federal government alone they amount to over $5.00 a month for every family.

Must Pay for Waste

It is in this way that the government's financial policies affect us as individuals The more the government wastes, the more money it has to take from us.

The more it takes from us the less food and clothing we can buy for ourselves.

The less we have for the education of our children and the less we have left to set aside for meeting emergencies—for the building of homes, for improvement of farms, for the construction of factories.

In short, every dollar that the government takes from us in taxes means just one dollar less for us—a dollar that we might use to buy things, the production of which would create jobs.

There is no better illustration of all this than the so-called surplus tax bill jammed through Congress this spring.

One practical effect of this tax law is to prevent a corporation from using its earnings in the business. It must pay them out in dividends.

In consequence, earnings no longer provide funds for making needed improvements, for replacing out-of-date equipment, and for additions to the plant.

Now what does this mean to a man looking for a job? It means less chance of finding work. There will not be those jobs that come from the gradual growth of our small businesses, from the replacement of equipment, and from plant expansion.

For those workers who already have jobs the effect of this tax law is just as bad. Because of this legislation it is no longer possible for a business, except at unbearable cost, to build up a reserve for meeting future losses.

In other words, a business organization, unless it already has reserves, is put on a hand-to-mouth basis. This means that it can exist only so long as it can make a profit.

Once trade slackens to the point where the business cannot make a profit, it is lost. Not having a reserve to fall back upon, its lot is bankruptcy, and the lot of the workers is unemployment.

Industry's Record

There is one other point in this connection I would like to mention: During the depression, private business paid out over 20 billion dollars more than it took in—20 billion dollars that helped to cushion the depression and keep employes working.

This expenditure was possible only because of reserves created during prosperous years.

Yet by careless, ill-advised tax legislation this present administration is, in effect, forbidding a restoration of the reserves exhausted by the depression.

Sponsors of this tax law may have thought that it was a smart way to appear to "soak the rich."

Actually it has no relation to "soaking the rich." What it does is protect the big fellow who still has a reserve, and tie a millstone around the neck of the little fellow.

This legislation prevents the small business man from expanding by the usual method of plowing earnings back into his organization. It is making harder and harder the re-employment of many of those at present out of work.

Changes Needed

And it is jeopardizing the job of every man and woman who today is working for a business corporation.

This is the most cockeyed piece of tax legislation ever imposed in a modern country and if I am elected I shall recommend the immediate repeal of this vicious method of taxation.

Let me add, the revision of this bill is only one of the changes needed in our tax system. Our whole tax structure, federal and state, needs overhauling.

This leads us to the second principle which I have listed—that we must make sure that our government gets a dollar's worth for every dollar it spends. By that I mean that we must get our money's worth for the taxes we pay. We must not lose sight of the fact that it is our money that the administration is wasting.

There are many cases in which it is quite obvious that the country as a whole, gets more for the dollars spent by the government than it would if we kept the money and spent it ourselves. I refer to such expenditures as are necessary to provide adequate protection, to maintain our courts, and to enforce our laws.

These expenditures are essential if we are to live in an orderly society. They help us to maintain our political and economic liberties and to enjoy the fruits of our own labor. For these expenditures, if they are made efficiently and with economy, we do get a dollar's worth for every dollar we spend.

Until a few years ago, this type of expenditure made up the bulk of our federal expenses. Under the present administration, this is no longer true. Today, the administration is spending money for almost every conceivable thing.

Reckless Spending

It is spending even for the necessary things in ways we cannot afford — in reckless ways which are beyond our means — which would never appeal to anyone who has had to work for his money—to anyone who has had to face the problem of making both ends meet—to anyone who has had to see to it that his bills get paid.

The Republican party believes in being generous in the spending of money for relief and emergency purposes, but it believes that these funds should be spent without waste and absurdities.

This brings us to our third principle—that the government, like the rest of us, should not get the habit of spending more than it receives.

The present administration seems to have entirely disregarded this principle. It is paying half of its bills with borrowed money. The truth is we are living in a fool's paradise—far beyond our income.

We all know this cannot continue indefinitely, because we have known persons who have tried it. We have seen them go along for a while with apparent ease. Buying first one thing and then another which they could not afford. And then we have seen them wind up "on the rocks."

Whenever a government continues to live beyond its income, it will suffer the same fate. For a while there will seem to be no end to the money which the government can spend. But in due time the day of reckoning must come. Someone, sometime, will have to pay the bill.

How is it that the government has been able to follow such a will-o'-the-wisp financial policy? It is because the public has not been properly informed.

We have been told that all this extravagance will be paid for by "soaking the rich."

This is not possible. The figures of our Treasury Department show that if we confiscated all incomes in excess of $5000 a year, it would not be enough to pay for the cost of our federal government!

Do not think that we have been getting something for nothing as the result of the huge government spending of the past three years. Some of the debt, it is true, has been shifted to the wealthy but the major portion of the debt, both the principal and the interest, is being charged up against ourselves and our children.

There is no other group to whom we can shift the burden and it is a burden that gets heavier and heavier every day that the present wasteful policies of the administration are continued.

The final principle the government must follow, is to prepare for the rainy day. In our own families we all recognize the importance of doing this and we try to build up individual reserves.

In the case of the government the equivalent of these reserves is the ability to borrow. It protects this ability by keeping its financial house in the best possible order.

How does it do this? In periods of good times, the government pays off its debts. So that if necessary it will be able to borrow again.

It keeps its taxes as low as possible, so that there will be a reserve of tax-paying ability which can be called upon to meet emergencies.

It permits its citizens to prosper, so that they will not have to go to the government for aid at the first breath of ill-wind.

These are the policies to be followed in good times. In bad times certain changes become necessary. But a financially responsible administration never loses sight of the fact that it acts at all times as a trustee of the people.

It watches every dollar it

Callander, Ont., Aug. 27—The fund being built up for the Dionne quintuplets stands at slightly more than $500,000.

Whether the quins appear in other pictures after the three already contracted for by Twentieth Century-Fox rests with the public.

Hon. David Croll, minister of welfare for Ontario, and government member of the board of guardians directing the destinies of the five babies, discussed plans for their future with the writer today.

"The hospital and all the other buildings on the hospital grounds have been paid out of movie royalties," he said.

"The Dionne fund passed the half million mark some weeks ago.

"That money is wisely invested in some of the safest and most conservative enterprises in North America.

"Even if the quins never make another picture, or capitalize their fame in other ways, they and their family will be provided for through life.

"We're waiting to see the public reaction to 'Reunion,' the picture now in the making, and the other to be completed by 1938.

"If the children are healthy, and the people still find them favorite actresses, I see no reason why other pictures should not be made.

SET FOR LIFE

"As to that, however, Dr. Dafoe is the judge. I simply suggest and approve business arrangements.

"Even if I am defeated for office, or retire to private life, the funds will be secure, with somebody else carrying on, and Dafoe jealously guarding the interests of his charges.

"Money need no longer be a major factor," he continued. "The quins are provided for, barring financial upheavals that nobody can guard against."

Croll has no feeling that the movie business is making the quins stage-conscious or affected. [illegible] right in that, as the reporter can testify after watching the quins go under the cameras and sound machines at their playground.

Five sturdier, happier, more natural children could not be found. Indeed, they don't know what is going on, and show only mild interest in the photographers and directors who invade their quiet.

For the first time since work was started on "Reunion," Director Norman Taurog and his crowd managed to get in a full 45 minutes of work. The sun was high and the children in a [illegible] mood.

TIPS OVER CHAIRS

Taurog was working on the final sequence of the picture. It's an outdoor scene with the quins arriving to do honor to "Dr. Luke" (Jean Hersholt, of course).

In the script, the quins have a party of their own at a little table on the lawn. To make it realistic, the party was made to coincide with their lunch time so they arrived hungry as little wolves and with no curiosity concerning the [illegible] in their garden.

Dressed in pink organdie, trimmed with [illegible] lace with ribbons in their hair, and wearing pink hats and coats, they sat in little chairs and addressed themselves to their bread and milk with a right good will.

Annette, the cup-happy, violated etiquette by dipping into the pitcher. Emilie went into a tantrum when there was no more milk for her and the cameras had to wait while she was restored to good humor.

Cecile went around tipping over chairs after her hunger was satisfied. Little Marie trudged after her, setting them upright.

The children have eight or ten words of French. Among themselves, they have some language that is like the twittering of birds.

QUINS PLAY PIANO

After the party scene came a bit with a piano set up on the lawn. The quins were seated on a long stool and all thumped away merrily.

Marie alone used one finger, and seemed to be trying to pick out little tunes. Annette put one chubby foot on top of the piano and kept a wary eye on it while she hammered the keys.

"Shooting" a scene with five girls of two in it is calculated to give a cameraman gray hair. When there is action they have to grind incessantly, for at any moment one of the five may take it into her head to do something that will spoil the picture.

No artificial lights are used in outdoor scenes. Reflectors catch the sun's rays and throw them onto the lawn. The cameras are covered with "blimps" to absorb the grinding sound. Jockeying of the microphones is a science in itself.

HERSHOLT BARRED

When the autograph hunters drew him [illegible], a guard refused to let him back on the grounds. Jean was without make-up. Anyway, the guard said, he'd never heard of him.

"But you must have," protested a tourist. "He was 'the country doctor.'"

"Never heard of that guy, either," countered the guard. "I'm here to keep out crashers."

The script called for five nurses and, as there were only three, the housekeeper and maid in the hospital were pressed into service.

While they were still acting away for dear life, the bland Dr. Dafoe called to them it was time to conclude their performance for the day and go in and get the babies' supper.

Foreign Colleges Accept Harvard Festival Bid

Fifty-four student delegates from 31 colleges and universities, including Oxford, Cambridge, the Sorbonne, and Bologna, Italy, have accepted invitations of the Harvard undergraduate body to attend the Harvard Tercentenary Celebration, Sept. 16, 17 and 18, it was announced today.

While at Harvard the delegates named will live with student hosts in the undergraduate houses, and participate in ceremonies, dances, dinners and receptions during the three-day celebration.

More than 10,000 alumni and 3000 invited guests will also be present during the three days of festival.

Ruse Escaper Gets 3 Months Added

Three years ago today Arthur Duffey, 32, of L street, South Boston, walked out of municipal court on a ruse, when he answered to the name of another prisoner who had been bailed.

Today, back in the same court, he was found guilty on a charge of escaping and was given an additional sentence of three months, from which he appealed.

Duffey had been serving a term at Deer Island when brought into court to answer a charge of larceny of an automobile.

He was captured two weeks ago in St. Louis and returned to Deer Island, from where he was brought into court again today.

Police Pickford File Missing at Inquiry positions from 23 witnesses. It was before Francis B. Burns, New York attorney appointed by the New York Supreme Court.

Edmund R. Dewing, district attorney of Norfolk-Plymouth county, represented Cornell, and Edward C. Raftery, of New York, appeared as counsel for Miss Pickford.

Testimony regarding the missing report was given by Captain Thomas F. Connolly of Division 19 who, at the time of the Pickford case here, was a lieutenant in charge at Boston police headquarters at night.

READS FROM REPORT

Stating that the original report could not be found and reading from what he said was a copy, Captain Connolly said he received a phone call at 10:15 on the night of January 26, 1934, from a woman who said she was Miss Pickford.

The report went on to state that she had been visited by a man and a woman who said they had letters regarding a will that might interest her; that the man left but the woman remained and created a scene; that a Wellesley phone number had been given her to call; that the woman, impertinent, said she had a spiritualistic message for her.

The report said Miss Pickford asked that two police officers be sent to her and that no story be given to the newspapers regarding the incident.

FEARED RACKET

At the bottom of the report, Captain Connolly had made his own notation:

"I believe the persons that visited Miss Pickford might be racketeers and should be investigated."

He testified he sent Sergeant James W. Lewis and Patrolman Patrick J. Murphy in a cruising car to the Ritz Carlton to see Miss Pickford.

Patrolman Murphy testified he was sent to the hotel after Miss Pickford telephoned and expressed fears for her safety. He said he and Sergeant Lewis followed the movie queen, Fulton Oursler, magazine editor and author, Mrs. Oursler and a woman secretary or maid in a chauffer-driven car to the Oursler home at Silver Beach, Falmouth.

CAR FOLLOWS

While they trailed the Pickford-Oursler car, the patrolman said, an auto without lights followed some distance behind them, and near Taunton the dashboard light of this car suddenly flicked on and Murphy saw two men in it, the man besides the driver scribbling something on a piece of paper.

Dewing demanded to know whether Murphy had made a report of this "ominous presence," and the policeman said he had not. Dewing pressed on this point and Murphy said he figured it was best to remain behind the Pickford car rather than investigate the unlighted machine.

"As a matter of fact, you never did see this other machine, did you?" asked Dewing.

"Oh, yes, I certainly did," was the answer.

TELLS OF BIDS

William P. Cody, an attorney for the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, called as a character witness, testified that on February 16, 1934, after litigation, the gas company shut off the gas in Cornell's home in Worcester street, Wellesley, for non-payment of a bill of $202.14. It was necessary to obtain a warrant to enter the house, he said.

He further said a $12.95 bill contracted by Cornell at an address in Samoset avenue, Quincy, had not been paid.

Testifying regarding the interior of the Wellesley residence he said there were pencil marks on the wall paper, that a door of a chamber looked as if it had been beaten with a sledge hammer and that cigarettes and cigar butts littered the floor.

Lieutenant Edward J. Keating of the Boston police testified to making inquiries in Wellesley concerning Cornell and being told that he owed many bills and that his credit was badly impaired. He then dropped the investigation, he said.

TRIED TO PASS

Amplifying Murphy's story about the "mystery" car that trailed them on hte ride from Boston to Falmouth, Sergeant Lewis testified it tried to pass the police car and take a position behind the car in which Miss Pickford was riding, but that this was prevented by increased speed. He saw this car for two or three minutes, he said.

William Casey, assistant manager of the Ritz-Carlton, said Miss Pickford was the only guest on the sixteenth floor of the hotel on the night a man and woman inquired at the desk to be directed to her suite.

The woman, he said, was defiant in her attitude to his questioning about her business but finally told him they wished to see Miss Pickford regarding some Christian Science letters.

He was shown a picture of a man and a woman and said the woman in the picture was the one in question.

He said he telephoned to Miss Pickford's suite and was told to send the pair up and later received a call from Miss Pickford's secretary instructing him not to let the pairup again.

Woman's Lipstick Leads to Arrest of 4 Youths

Claimed victim of an attack in Melrose today, a Charlestown young woman caused the arrest of four Everett youths, her alleged assailants, by recording the registration of their automobile in lipstick on her compact mirror.

The complainant in the case was Mrs. Loretta Madden, 30, of Medford street, Charlestown, said by police to be the estranged wife of a Boston patrolman.

As the result of the lipstick notation she made on her mirror, police traced an automobile and arrested John P. Fusi, 21, and Sabino Y. Fusi, 23, brothers, both of Main street; Robert M. Saporito, 20, of Bucknam street and John F. Tammero, 21, of Avon street.

Each was charged with attack, and taken to Malden court.

Mrs. Madden told police she was waiting in Main street, Everett, for a car for Charlestown when the driver of a passing auto offered her a lift. She accepted the offer, she said, without seeing three other men in the rear of the car.

Instead of driving her to Charlestown, she said, the car was turned round and she was taken to Swain's Pond road, Melrose, where she was roughly handled.

Boys Warn Drivers of Speed Trap

Neighborhood children today yanked the teeth out of East Boston's new police trap to snare speeders on Saratoga street between Winthrop and East Boston. Yesterday nearly 100 motorists were caught in a snare devised by two officers.

But today neighborhood boys hung a sign well in advance of the trap. It read: "Police Trap 100 Yards Ahead, Watch Out." The officers netted nary a speeder.

DERN, War Chief, DIES

FIRST STRICKEN IN APRIL

severe colds, which gradually weakened him and placed an extremely heavy strain on his heart.

Dern—twice Governor of Utah—brought to the Roosevelt cabinet an advocacy of preparedness for national defense, although he declared himself "no militarist."

By backing up Generals Douglas MacArthur and Malin Craig, his successive chiefs of staff, in their plans to reorganize, expand and modernize the Army, Dern proposed to build the Army into a small, but first-class fighting force.

FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM

Although the American Army ranks approximately seventeenth in man power, it is now well on its way toward a five-year program objective which will give it new and faster airplanes, more tanks and armored cars, semi-automatic rifles for the infantry, modernized artillery, and other up-to-date implements of war.

During Dern's administration also the War Department extended its flood control program and supervised the organization and administration of CCC camps.

FOULOIS ACTION

When a congressional committee demanded the ousting of Major General Benjamin Foulois, the army's first flyer, as chief of air corps because of his alleged violation of the law covering plane purchases, Dern declined to act until the accused general had been given a "fair trial."

Foulois, considering himself vindicated by the ensuing investigation and "trial," eventually voluntarily retired.

Criticism of army air corps flying of airmail during an emergency caused by cancellation of private company contracts led Dern to name a committee of aeronautical authorities, which was asked to recommend a course of action.

AIRMAIL ACTION

From that committee came the Baker report with recommendations which were followed by Dern and a program for increasing the strength and efficiency of the air corps.

In November, 1935, President Roosevelt named Dern as his official representative at the inauguration of the new commonwealth government of the Philippines. En route to Manila, he visited Hawaii, Japan, China and Guam.

Before coming to Washington as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet Dern had prospered as a mining man and inventor of mining apparatus.

He was the second Democrat and the second non-Mormon to reach the Governor's chair of Utah.

The Utah governor met the then governor of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, at a governor's conference. When Roosevelt was elected it was reported he had Dern slated to become Secretary of the Interior, handling many of the West's problems.

The Colorado River-Boulder Dam activity, however, was reported to have raised opposition from some senatorial quarters and Roosevelt compromised by naming the Utah governor Secretary of War.

KNOX URGES 'RETURN TO EARLY AMERICAN HONESTY'

G. O. P. FIRST MATE CHARGES DEAL WITH DESPOTISM

Hampton Beach, N. H., Aug. 27—Colonel Frank Knox, G. O. P. nominee for vice-president, in opening his campaign today before the Rockingham County Republican Club, said:

On the eve of a "swing around the circle" which will take me into 25 of the 48 States of the Union, I come back here to New England for inspiration and encouragement.

The fight we make in this campaign is a fight to restore in America the ancient principles of sound government, the ancient virtues of honesty and thrift and self-reliance in our national life.

And from what point could I more fittingly begin this long excursion in the cause of sanity and integrity and self-respect in our nation.

For three hundred years New England has stood for just these things. Only a few miles away stands old Fort Constitution, redolent of the patriotic spirit of those doughty men of colonial New Hampshire, the men who hid away the powder at the risk of their lives.

The spirit of intolerance with autocracy was theirs. There is need today for that same spirit.

In colonial days New Englanders knew the yoke of oppression, fitted to their necks by a remote bureaucracy created by an autocratic ruler, drunk with power. Note the indictment they drew against this ruler:

"He has erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out our substance."

Was that charge more appropriate in 1776 than in 1936? Could any statement express more accurately our present situation?

"He has erected a multitude of new offices."

The charge fits. There are the NRA, the AAA, the PWA, the WPA, the CWA, the FERA. But why go on? There are more than 50 of them, and at the present moment they are solemnly investigating to see what some of them are for.

People Harassed

"He has sent hither swarms of officers."

How many have interfered with your private business since 1932? How many have sent you questionnaires?

Note the colonists' charge. They "harass our people and eat out our substance."

There are more than 800,000 of them now. One-fourth of our income now goes for the costs of government in the United States.

Even though we are trying to pass much of the burden on to the next generation by reckless borrowing, we are, even now, working one day in five for the government. How many of you believe that it is worth one day in five?

We are told that the New Deal is heading a "New Revolution" against "economic royalists." You cannot sell such wares to New Englanders. I do not believe that you can sell them to Americans the country over. We are an emotional people, but we are not fools.

Let me quote from the leader of this second American revolution to dethrone the economic royalists. He says:

"Through new uses of the corporation the structure of modern life was impressed into the royal service. They created a new despotism and wrapped it in robes of legal sanction. In its service new mercenaries sought to regiment the people, their labor and their property."

What is the meaning of this jumble of vague economic phrases? Who are these economic royalists? These are strong words from a man who all his business life has been associated with corporate enterprise.

He refers to "new uses of the corporation." For 30 years past there has been a consistent improvement in the financial practices of corporations, partly due to their own increasing sense of responsibility, partly due to the splendid regulations imposed by many of the states, especially in New England.

The only new uses of the corporation in our time are the incredible uses of the Federal government disclosed in its own corporations in Delaware, created to permit government to do strange and un-American things.

"The structure of modern life was impressed into the royal service," we hear.

In all American history there has not been until 1933 any royal power dictating to American business. In that year the American worker, the American farmer, the American merchant were forced to take orders from an all-powerful bureaucratic government.

New Despotism

"They created a new despotism," we hear.

Until 1933 American industrial life was not only the richest on earth; it was the freest.

In one year all American industry found itself shackled, bound with 10,000 regulations enforced by 2000 minor officials.

It put little fellows in jail, but big business wrote its own ticket.

We hear that the despotism of the economic royalist was "wrapped in robes of legal sanction."

But the despotism of 1933 was decreed by ukases from a subservient Congress and forced on two million helpless employers, with a truly royal indifference to "doubts of its constitutionality no matter how reasonable."

We hear that "in its service new mercenaries sought to regiment the people." New mercenaries is right. There are 250,000 new ones right now, and civil service is not the basis of their selection.

We hear that under the reign of the royalists "there was no place for our many thousands of small business men and merchants."

In the history of the United States no small business man had his private business run by government until 1933. The era of cracking down on business was a new era.

Until that time millions of small business men went about their affairs, facing competition bravely and obeying every regulation of government, and suddenly there fell upon them a crushing regimentation that thousands of them were compelled to violate or go out of business.

You hear that "throughout the nation opportunity was limited by monopoly." The first step taken by the present administration was to suspend the laws against extortionate and illegal monopoly.

Big Business Bait

This was the bait held out to big business—the reward for big business support of this attempt to bring every business under control of federal government.

From 1890 to 1933, a period of more than 40 years, the worst practices of monopoly were held in check by the Sherman Act, and under that act and other acts, monopoly was broken up or restrained or punished.

The present administration abolished this check and created a regimentation that every economist in American said would promote monopoly.

The Supreme Court destroyed this regimentation.

And then the New Deal administration writes into its 1936 platform a pious repudiation of monopoly, and its spokesman tells the American people that until the present administration small business was choked by monopoly.

We hear again: "Individual initiative was crushed in the cogs of a great machine."

When was initiative crushed in the mightiest industrial and agricultural empire in this world's history?

Business Fears

For three years past enterprise has languished and initiative has palsied under the fear of government. Even with the repeated decisions of the Supreme Court in defense of free enterprise under the guaranty of the Constitution, business is still afraid. It knows that breathing-spells are only breathing-spells. It knows that promises are mere scraps of paper.

Daily we read of needed business improvements not undertaken, of capital investments not made, because of fear. Under the New Deal new enterprises have not been born; new jobs have not been created.

If I seem to labor this point about economic royalists, there is a reason. The present administration asks for your ballot. It asks for four more years in power. It asks approval by you of the governmental hysterics of the past three years.

It asks you to confirm the endless squandering of public funds, the adulteration of the currency, the cracking down on business, the destruction of food and clothing, and the increase of taxation for which it is solely responsible.

Its major policies are in ruins, rejected by the people or abandoned as failures, or still-born before they began life, or indignantly condemned by the Supreme Court.

The Public Works program survives chiefly as a huge volume of public debt. The AAA survives only in the rising cost of living, the imports of foreign farm products and the ruin of our farmers' foreign markets.

NRA Nightmare

The NRA survives only as a nightmare memory of a nation gone haywire. The money program survives only in the uncertainty as to what our money standard is and the probability of a disastrous inflation.

The relief program has degenerated into reckless outlay for boondoggling. There is nothing left of the recovery program except the annual suggestion of a belt of trees.

And the future plans of the present administration are an absolute blank. Is there a man here who has any idea as to the future agricultural policy of the administration?

One day we hear that it intends to increase the payments to farmers for not growing things. That is on the days the political reports come in. They are willing to pay the farmer for not producing anything whatever except votes.

Another day we hear that they are going to give the farmers bonuses for producing. That is on the days when the drouth reports come in.

Is there a man here who knows what the currency plans of the administration are? Is there any man anywhere who knows what our money system is? Is it a gold standard? Try to get a $5 gold piece to give to your small son for his birthday.

They are planning to put 10 billion gold dollars in a hole in Kentucky, to prevent some foreign foe, or the Republicans or the holders of gold bonds or some other evil persons from getting it. Beyond the hole in Kentucky, there is no plan.

Is there a man here who knows what the industrial program of the government is? It is unknown—lost in the bewildered confusion caused by the Supreme Court's decision on the oil measures, the Guffey Act, and the NRA.

Bigger Deficits

Is there a man here who has any idea what the administration's budget program is? In the matter of budget, there has been one job of balancing. Every promise to balance the budget since 1933 has been balanced by a deficit—the bigger the promise each year the bigger the deficit.

With its entire program in chaos, the administration's 1936 platform offers no constructive recourse, gives no explanation of the past, presents nothing for the future.

And in his acceptance speech the President ignored money, credit, budgets, agriculture, industry, trade, labor, relief and recovery. In the midst of national uncertainty and apprehension as to the future policies of the government he sets up an imaginary straw man and wallops him with eloquence for 30 minutes.

With a deficit in his treasury running at the rate of about 10 million dollars a day, he offers to save the American people from some imaginary economic royalists.

With 18 million people on relief, he offers to go out and slaughter a big bad wolf if he can only find the wolf and then be sure it is a wolf.

What Are the Facts?

What are the facts about these economic royalists. Many of you here are merchants and storekeepers. How many of you are economic royalists? How many of you have been going about creating economic despotism?

A lot of you have been so harried by taxes and so injured by rising prices and so hurt by the more abundant life the government has been providing for us that you feel yourself lucky to be one jump ahead of the sheriff.

There are more than 1½ million retail stores in the United States. Of these about 150,000 are operated by chain store ownership. About 1 1-3 million stores are operated by indepndents, and these independents take in yearly four times as much as the chain stores.

In ten years the number of retail stores have increased nearly a third of a million. Where are the economic royalists in the retail business?

Some of you here today are farmers. How many of you are tyrannical economic royalists? There are about 7,000,000 farmers in the country and more than 30,000,000 people live in farm areas.

The only economic royalists in the farm group are not farmers at all. They are the New York city banks and the large sugar corporations in Hawaii and the absentee cotton plantation corporations and the garbage contractors who get checks from $50,000 to $1,000,000 under the AAA for not growing sugar, or cotton or pigs.

Free Enterprise

Preserve free enterprise in America and the little fellow will make the big fellow behave.

Where the large corporation survives, it is because it performs a useful function. Where are the economic royalists the present administration wants to destroy?

Contrast Henry Ford with the present administration, the one adding untold value to American life, promoting enterprise, employing labor, raising the standard of living; the other destroying food, wasting the nation's assets, increasing the cost of living.

The country is weary of it all. The people have patiently endured regimentation and taxation and destruction of goods. They have paid for one experiment after another. They have seen natural recovery struggling desperately against fear and intimidation and waste and destruction. They have seen the most vital and delicate economic relationships ruthlessly mutilated by a motley crew of experimenters gathered by accident.

They have seen the business of America directed by an army general from Wall Street, the agriculture of America directed by a country editor, the construction of America directed by a city lawyer, the finances of America directed by a novice in everything. They have had enough.

For three years we have had a government that has deliberately scuttled these three principles of simplicity, economy and certainty in government.

The nation has lived for three years in an atmosphere of depression, uncertainty and apprehension.

Do you want to approve such a government and give it a permit to practice economic vivisection for another four years?

Or do you want to install a new administration that will give the American people a government of simplicity, economy and certainty?

You will have such an administration under Alfred M. Landon

CURLEY LEADS IN FALL RIVER

MASSACHUSETTS

Democratic candidates for United States senator and for governor in Massachusetts had their first real chance to cheer as the 44th day of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser straw ballot found sentiment being sounded in Fall River.

In the mill city, Governor Curley, Democratic candidate for the Senate, was given 164 votes, as against 77 for Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., his Republican rival, while State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, Democratic aspirant for the governorship, polled 172 votes to 73 for Haigis.

Mail voting pulled down these Democratic gains somewhat, however, and the Republican contenders are still far out in the lead.

The standing is as follows:

For United States Senator
Lodge	8675
Curley	4683
For Governor
Haigis	7951
Hurley	5136

Today the straw ballot car is in New Bedford and Fairhaven.

Deer, Deer

Montreal, Aug. 27 (INS)—A marauder crashed through a bay window in the home of L. Goldberg last night, and in a few minutes wrecked the parlor, slashing drapes and smashing furniture.

A police radio car sped to the scene. A volley of rifle shots rang out. The marauder sprawled out dead. It was a deer.

CROWDS GREET ROOSEVELT

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

En Route to the Dakotas With President Roosevelt, Aug. 27 (INS)—President Roosevelt crossed over into the heart of the great drouth region today after a swift journey from Washington that brought to him and to the New Deal aides who accompanied him, gratifying demonstrations of popular political support in the West this fall.

Although not scheduled as a campaign trip, Mr. Roosevelt's sortie into the West in the interests of drouth relief and rehabilitation early and inevitably took on a political atmosphere. None but operating stops were scheduled between the national capital and the Dakotas, but there were a lot of them.

Crowds gathered at these spots through Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and Minnesota and were uniformly cordial and enthusiastic in their greetings.

In brief, impromptu remarks from the rear platform of his special train, Mr. Roosevelt told his well wishers he was glad to be back in the West again, and to note that "conditions appear much better than when I was here before," inferentially drawing a parallel between 1932, when he was a candidate, and this year, when he is again a candidate.

Otherwise, Mr. Roosevelt avoided any semblance of campaigning. The train stops were so abbreviated they afforded him little opportunity for extended remarks. Moreover, he insisted he was travelling as the chief executive, and not as a candidate for re-election. He will retrace his steps later in the latter role.

DEAL TAXES SCORED

used in the way which will do the most good. It borrows spends to be sure that it is no more than is absolutely necessary, for it knows that if we exhaust our borrowing capacity today, our children will be helpless should they be called on to face an emergency.

In my judgment these are the common sense principles that our federal government should follow. Unfortunately they are not the principles which have been followed by the present administration.

In spite of repeated assurance about a balanced budget—in October, 1932, after the banking holiday in 1933, in January, 1934, in January, 1935, and in January, 1936—what has happened?

The administration has continued to increase expenditures, even for the regular departments, and carry us deeper and deeper into debt.

The latest assurance, volunteered only 13 days ago, repeats the old story—"business is improving, revenue increasing, no new taxes will be necessary to balance the budget." How can anyone really believe this, in the face of the record of the present administration?

It has piled deficit upon deficit.

It has increased our public debt until today the total is equal to two-thirds of the annual income of every man, woman and child in the United States.

It has created an atmosphere of spendthrift generosity that has made it impossible for it to restore economy in government expenditures.

It has acted as if it were willing to give the whole treasury away, trying to enrich everybody by impoverishing everybody else.

The time has come to put an end to these policies. We must establish a system of simple, honest bookkeeping. We must return to the principles which we follow in the handling of our own finances.

This will give us a government able to meet every reasonable demand made upon it; a government fully prepared to assume its increasing financial responsibilities; a government able to meet the needs that arise from any emergency; a government that will leave our children a fair chance to solve the problems that arise in their time.

That is the kind of government we must have if we are to get rid of unemployment by giving our workers real jobs at good pay.

I know that accomplishing all this is not a task that can be completed overnight, and I make no such promise.

We have huge responsibilities that we must continue to meet.

But with the help of a courageous country, it is a task that can and will be done.

That is my pledge to the American people.

Landon Cheered For Tax Attack

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Aboard Landon Special, en route to Topeka, Kas., Aug. 27—Governor Alfred M. Landon, Republican nominee for President, was speeding westward through Illinois to his Topeka home today after having arraigned the Roosevelt administration at Buffalo for wasteful extravagance and spendthrift generosity in its financial program.

The governor was tremendously pleased with the reception given him on his initial campaign tour through western Pennsylvania and New York. Scores of Republican leaders informed him he would carry both states, pointing to his enthusiastic audiences as proof of his popularity in the East.

Landon was scheduled for 18 appearances on the rear-end of his train during the day and early night in towns and cities of Illinois and Missouri. The major stop was scheduled for Springfield, Ill., where he will lay a wreath on the tomb of Abraham Lincoln. He will reach Topeka just before midnight.

IN "FOOL'S PARADISE"

In Buffalo, where he delivered the third major address of his eastern tour, Landon assailed the Roosevelt administration for piling up deficits, spending above its income, socking the poor with concealed taxes and loading future generations with huge debt burdens.

Landon specifically pledged repeal of the federal tax on undistributed corporate earnings, if elected President. He charged this tax law was the "most cockeyed piece of tax legislation ever imposed in a modern country."

Declaring the poor of America were paying 25 per cent more taxes in 1936 than in 1932, Landon charged the administration with "living in a fool's paradise."

He said frankly:

"The truth is, we are living in a fool's paradise—far beyond our income."

He promised to "overhaul the entire (federal) tax system" if he reaches the White House. He said the present taxes weighed too heavily upon people with meager incomes—those earning $25 a week or less. He blamed this burden upon Roosevelt waste and foolish expenditures.

"CHILDREN MUST PAY"

He said:

"We must remember that every time the government spends a dollar, that dollar will have to be paid by us or we must pass the debt on to be paid by our children. No parents like to leave their children a heritage of debts and mortgages.

"The creation of a staggering public debt closes the door of opportunity to the youth of America, just as certainly as a staggering private debt.

"We must face the issue squarely. The present administration's daily mounting deficits are closing the door of opportunity to your children and to my children."

Declaring the government should raise the major portion of its revenue from direct taxes, Landon pointed out that the Roosevelt administration was now getting a majority of its revenue from "indirect and hidden taxes." He pointed out that hidden taxes were being levied on bread, other foods, clothing, gasoline and cigarettes among scores of commodities purchased by the poor. He conceded that taxes have been increased [illegible] but added:

"The larger payments by well-to-do individuals and corporations have not been enough to cover the waste and extravagance of this administration. What is the result? Those of our citizens with small incomes have had to pay an increased proportion of the cost of federal government."

EVERY FAMILY PAYS

Landon charged that hidden taxes were taking "about twenty cents out of every dollar we spend."

"In the case," he added, "of the federal government alone, they amount to $5 a month for every family."

Denouncing the new Roosevelt tax on undistributed corporate earnings, he declared private industry had spent $20,000,000,000 "to cushion the depression and keep employes working." He said such an expenditure was possible "only because of reserves created during prosperous years."

The Roosevelt tax, he added, would prevent the creation of such reserves.

Society Fashion Show Supplies Trend of Styles for Autumn

By BETTY ALDEN

EVEN AS COMING EVENTS CAST THEIR shadows before, the change of each season is preceded by a wave of fashion shows . . . to give Milady an idea of what Dame Fashion has selected for her to wear during the coming season . . .

Society mannequins modelled fall clothes just off the designers' tables . . . in the fashion show presented after dinner at the Casino in Magnolia last evening . . .

MRS. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, JR.

And judging by this brief prevue of the styles, there will be plenty of those indispensable little two-piece suits in every girl's wardrobe this autumn . . . simple woollen dresses with individually cut jackets of harmonizing imported tweeds, lined with the material of the dress . . .

Marian Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lawrence of Manchester, sauntered along the runway in one of these suits . . . its coat an exact imitation of a woodsman's mackinaw . . . short and boxy and of huge yellow and navy plaid, over a simple navy two-piece dress . . .

When Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Jr., pranced into the spotlight, one couldn't help thinking the outfit she modelled was a take-off of an apache dancer, even to the little velvet visor cap . . . the dress of purple velvet had a fitted jacket of purple and beige checks and was exceedingly chic . . .

Cizzy Cochrane puts her heart into her work when she models and somehow seems to show a gown off to its very best advantage . . . She was selected to model the clothes especially planned for the debutante's night life, and Sister Frothingham appeared in a sporty daytime outfit that will undoubtedly be chosen by some of the debs for their first Vincent Club luncheon.

It combined a rough brown tweed skirt, woodsy green jacket with a rust suede vest and jaunty rust hat . . .

Sister's mother, Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, didn't miss her dancing, even though she rushed Sister home as soon as the fashion show was over, for she and her party had an early dinner at the Casino and danced every dance before the show began . . . Sister's modelling was just another event in a very crowded day, for she was one of the girls competing in the gymkhana at the Albert C. Burrages all afternoon . . .

Interrupt Dinners to Attend Show

CHARLOTTE VALENTINE and her new fiance were among those who interrupted their dinners to sit back in their chairs and give all their attention to the fashion show . . . Charlotte's pale green chiffon had a full skirt which floated as she danced and a pair of antique gold clips for ornaments . . .

With the first strains of a group of German waltzes, Nat Simpkins and his German bride, were the first on the dance floor . . . Carmen holding up the train of her Alice blue taffeta gown as she pivoted and glided in the arms of her tall, dark husband . . . Blue is evidently Nat's favorite color for Carmen merely changed from one blue outfit to another when dressing for the evening after her afternoon visit to the gymkhana.

Lend Hand to Gymkhana Committee

MRS. EDWARD BUXTON and her sisters, Persis and Elizabeth Mason, made a quick change from their sport togs worn to the gymkhana where they all lent a helping hand to the committee, into their evening frocks for the dinner dance . . . Mr. Buxton, Sam Houghton and several other friends joined them to applaud Mrs. Buxton's appearances on the runway as a model in the fashion show . . .

Joe Woods and Tim Clark kept each other company while their wives took part in the fashion show . . . Kitty Clark joining them later in a pale green net gown with narrow bands of taffeta cartridge pleats around the skirt and three strands of pearls around her throat . . . Betty Woods wore almost the same shade of green in chiffon with wide dust ruffles . . .

Evelyn Freeman of Marblehead in a flowing creation of turquoise silk, had George Vaughan seated at her right as she played hostess to a tableful of merrymakers . . .

Mrs. Paul Moore, another hostess to a sizable group of friends, wore a heavenly gown of brick red satin with a tight fitting square cut bodice and accordion pleated skirt that swayed as she danced . . .

Mrs. Arthur Devens dined with a crowd of young people . . . the Winthrop Emmets (Marion de Forest Clark), Anne Tuckerman, Harriet Moseley, and Mrs. John Tuckerman among them . . .

Susie Seyburn and Olivia Ames enjoyed a few waltzes in between their favorite numbers and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abbott Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Foster, Jr., crowded around the orchestra to hear the latest "knock, knocks" . . .

Gymkhana Scheduled for Candlewood Farm

ANOTHER EVENT which comes as a prelude to the fall season is the gymkhana, which is held every year for the benefit of the Ascension Memorial Church in Ipswich . . . Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage's Candlewood Farm is the setting for this novel event which always attracts practically all the socialites of Ipswich and Hamilton as well as some from other parts of the Shore . . .

Yesterday's affair was a huge success, and the hint of fall in the air, the sight of thoroughbreds racing across the closely mowed fields of the Burrage estate and practically all of the Myopia crowd present, made one think of the beginning of the fall hunting season which will soon be getting under way in the cool frosty mornings of September . . .

Book Reviews

By MILES ALDEN

Noah Pandre, by Salman Schneour. Translated by Joseph Leftwich. Lee Furman—New York. $2.50.

Among the Jewish people Salman Schneour, who has written many Dickens-like novels both in Yiddish and Hebrew, has a large following. "Noah Pandre," the first of Schneour's works to be translated into English, deals with a simple Jewish Samson—Noah Pandre—and the particular environment in which he lived in Czarist Russia.

Descendant of a long line of butchers, the young giant Noah heeds to the advice of the Chassidic Rabbi, whose mystical powers even today is revered by thousands of Jews, and becomes a coachman. It is then that Pandre shows strength of character, as well as physical superiority. He saves a rich man from the wrath of a drunken police chief and is sent to jail for two years; he later saves a thief from the tyranny of a convict bully. The thief proves the more grateful of the two benefactors.

Because Noah was inherently good, and tried to help others, he lost almost all the things dear to him; but he never lost faith. His spiritual fibre proved to be of more value than his physical strength.

Gilbert Bed In Demand

Hollywood, Aug. 27 (US)—John Gilbert's bed . . .

Out of a storehouse of rich personal and household furnishings which the great screen lover left behind, this massive Napoleonic couch has become the most sought-after possession.

A woman, identified only as a beautiful screen star, bid for it. A New York millionaire bid for it. And a famous mattress and spring factory in Detroit bid for it.

Taken off the auction block after the auctioneer suggested a starting bid of $250 and received no response except curious looks and excited praise, the bed immediately became the object of spirited private bidding.

In all probability the luxurious piece of furniture, which measures eight-feet square and is decorated in old ivory finish, will become a store window object d'art and not a private property in someone's bed-chamber, the auctioneer said.

"A telegram from the bed spring company read: "We want Gilbert's bed. Please apprise us of all bids. We will meet same."

All day the auction continued with hundreds of articles of clothing and furniture being sold.

A chaise lounge which the actor purchased for his last wife, Virginia Bruce, sold for $90. It was valued at $1000.

Hull Club ENDS SEASON With Dance

As a gala close to its seasonal festivities Hull Yacht Club held a dinner dance at the Pemberton Inn recently. The young set who are summering south of Boston preceded the jolly evening with a round of dinner parties . . . many others entertained guests at the soiree which attracted goodly numbers from surrounding resorts.

Among the early arrivals at the affair were Peggy Fouhy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Fouhy of Belmont, whose pink crepe frock was most attractive . . . Jeanette Casey, who chose yellow chiffon an Mary McDonald, one of the club's most successful skippers, wore gold accessories with her white chiffon dancing frock.

Many of the club's members were on hand lending their support to the jolly fete . . . Mrs. Frank G. Sullivan, whose black chiffon frock was printed with large colorful flowers . . . Mrs. Paul Jackmaugh, whose son is commodore of the group, was smart in a jacketed frock of blue lace . . . and Mrs. Thomas Pelham topped her coral satin gown with a matching wrap collared with chinchilla.

The young set along the shore turned out "en masse" . . . Mary Frances Connelly, wearing a picturesque gown of green taffeta . . . Mary Mackin, squired by Ernest Coulon, wore a heavily pleated gown of blue crepe and Phil O'Connor's black dress had effective trimmings of bright gold.

From Scituate came Alice Jantzen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis T. Jantzen, wearing a sophisticated frock of silver brocade . . . Marion Carroll smartly attired in pink crepe, and Edith Dooley, who is summering at Green Harbor, wore a ruffled gown of orchid organdie. Escorting her was Joe Groden of Cambridge and Green Harbor.

Also attending the final party of the season were Alice Gallagher, Jane McLaughlin, Virginia Graham, Anne Marie Mackin and Mary Sullivan.

MAYFLOWER SCHOOL

Pick Roxbury Building Names

Why name the new Roxbury school for any person at all?

That's what a letter to the Boston Evening American's School Name Ballot Editor demands today.

"Call it the Mayflower school," the writer urges. "That will put an end to all this jealousy and bickering.

"Even if there are a few of us who can't claim Mayflower ancestors, either passengers or deck-hands, we all look back with reverence and pride to the coming to these shores of that courageous Pilgrim band.

"Children of the future, attending the Mayflower school, will be reminded, by the name, not only of the famous ship but also of one of the more beautiful of our native flowers, the arbutus or mayflower.

"How much better such a name as 'Mayflower' for a school than the name of some political office holder, past or present, with the inevitable connotation of ballot box squabbling and election-time log-rolling."

There's an idea for you.

And there's at least one vote on record now for the choice of the name, "Mayflower" for the new school building at Eliot square.

Groups who want the new school named for Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield took a sudden spurt in the balloting today.

They sent in half a dozen batches of votes, to a total of more than 130.

Still leading in the Boston Evening American's referendum are the three names originally proposed, John Eliot school, John L. Gleason school and William L. Phinney school.

GROUP AIDING REDS REFUSED PERMIT HERE

Denounced by Representative Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester as "a group of radicals working under the guise of labor," the United Committee for the Support of the Struggle of Labor against Spanish Fascism (sic) was denied permission to hold a public meeting Labor Day by Mayor Mansfield.

Application for the permit seeking use of the Charles Street Mall of the Boston Common, was filed by Arthur M. [illegible], Leverett street, West End, who described himself as secretary of the group.

The petition claimed among its "members and sponsors" Robert J. Watt, who is secretary-treasurer and legislative agent of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor.

OTHER SPONSORS

Other sponsors claimed by the group included the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union joint board, the Ladies Garment Workers union joint board, Painters' Union No. 11, Mrs. Van Vaerenwyck, Michael Flaherty, Philip Kramer, Joseph Salerno, Zara DuPont, Samuel Angoff, the American League Against War and Fascism, the Greater Boston Peace Committee, and the Socialist and Communist parties of Boston.

Dorgan, hearing of application for the permit, declared:

"Freedom of speech, while commendable, has its limits. The Common was never intended as a place to extoll the slaughter of innocent persons and the sacking of a religion.

"This group no more represents labor than did the group at the convention of the American Federation of Teachers which voted to aid the Spanish Reds."

MANSFIELD'S REASONS

Mayor Mansfield, after conferring with Dorgan, gave as his reason for refusing the permit:

"The discussion of such a controversial subject on the Common would lead to disturbances and possible violence."

Secretary Watt told the Boston Evening American that he was not a sponsor of the organization. He said that he had been asked to speak at the meeting, but made no decision, and "thought no more about it."

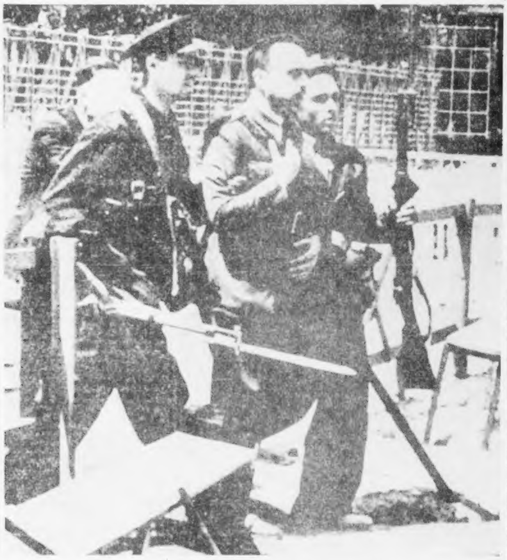
Dawn Patrol Takes Rebel to His Doom



(Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Loyal Spanish government soldiers at Toledo, Spain, have in their custody a rebel officer who was a member of Spain's army before the rebellion. They are marching him to face a firing squad of Reds. Such was the fate of many officers and men who were members of the regular army and later captured in the rebel lines.

U. S. Driven Toward War, Says Butler

New York, Aug. 27 (INS)—Major General Smedley D. Butler, retired commandant of the Marine Corps, jumped back into the metropolitan headlines today as a result of a [illegible] meeting of the American League Against War and Fascism in Long Beach, L. I., last night.

Less than ten minutes after [illegible] persons assembled in the auditorium of the Pine School in Long Beach had contributed to a fund which is to be cabled to the Spanish Loyalist Government, Gen. Butler strode boldly to the rostrum and demanded:

"What in hell is it our business what's going on in Spain? Use your common sense."

He then launched into a vehement attack on efforts to inveigle the United States in European affairs while his audience listened in silence.

"Remember the past wars, the agitation. Remember how even our ministers told us of atrocities," Butler added.

"If we don't attend to our own business, we'll have these boys getting their intestines blown out.

"I've been sitting here all night hearing you people get us into another war."

Late War Flashes

Madrid, Aug. 27 (INS)—For the third time in a week, a rebel bombing planes raided Madrid today, fleeing with the loss of one machine after dropping bombs that did no damage. Obviously merely attempting to throw the population into panic, the planes soared well out of reach of anti-aircraft guns. The war ministry said loyal planes shot down one insurgent machine.

Gibraltar, Aug. 27 (INS)—Insurgents driving towards Madrid from the southwest today captured the town of Talavera De La Reina and are now pressing along the valley of the Tagus River towards Toledo, 40 miles eastward, according to the rebel radio at Tetuan, Morocco. Charging that Reds bombarded the Red Cross hospital at Jaca, the rebel radio in Seville today broadcast a warning that if the raid were repeated, wounded government prisoners would be shot.

Biriatou, France, Aug. 27—(INS)—A new rebel attack upon the strong Loyalist fortifications at Irun appeared repulsed today, the second setback suffered by the insurgents in 24 hours. An attempt to capture government trenches by a flank movement along the slopes of Mount Turiarte broke down despite a supporting artillery barrage.

Bayonne, France, Aug. 27 (INS)—White flags have been seen flying from the windows of Oviedo by government bombing airplanes, according to a Loyalist announcement today. Government supporters believe the civil population wishes to surrender, although rebels are still holding the city.

Burgos, Spain, Aug. 27 (INS) — Rebel leaders today claimed capture of the villages of Barcarotta and Ascorchel.

London, Aug. 27 (INS)—Great Britain and France took drastic measures today to gun-starve the Spanish revolution out of existence. Official announcement was made that both nations had launched a move to clamp down a Europe-wide embargo on arms and ammunition. French and British envoys to 17 European countries which have not yet imposed embargoes have been instructed to bring pressure to bear to get immediate action.

U. S. Plane Waits to Fly King to Spain

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press

Innsbruck, Austria, Aug. 27—The impression grew here today that former King Alfonso might make an impulsive decision to fly to Spain as an American-owned plane held for a fortnight on legal technicalities was tuned for a takeoff.

The plane, on August 11, brought two couriers to consult with Alfonso. The plane has been held because the permit of Pilot Lieutenant O. Cathcart Jones, English flier, had expired. Mechanics said the plane "awaits the King's orders."

Alfonso was reported at Dellach golfing and reading a voluminous air mail from Paris.

The Marquis Deleno, owner of the suppressed Monarchist newspaper ABC, was one of the two couriers flown here by Jones to confer with the former king.

Reports have been current since the revolt started that Alfonso might accept an alliance with Spanish Fascist rebels looking toward restoration of the monarchy.

Jaime and Juan, younger sons of Alfonso, were called to Dellach earlier this month and he was believed to have discussed with them his chances of returning to power in the midst of civil war.

Curley Assailed On Contract Backing

Likening Governor Curley to the late Governor Huey Long, "Kingfish of Louisiana," Executive Councillor Joseph B. Grossman of Quincy today attacked the chief executive of Massachusetts for his action in supporting the award of a contract for the Quabbin reservoir in the amount of $297,000 after a bid was put in for the same work by another contractor for $278,000 less.

"Governor Curley is quoted as supporting this award if it will put men to work," said Councillor Grossman. "The same number of men would be put to work under the lower bid since it covered the same project. The only additional people to be put to work are the poor citizens of Massachusetts, who will work long and hard to pay off this additional debt of $278,000.

"In my opinion these contracts should continue to come before the governor's council for approval. It appears that custom and precedent under the Curley administration are always subordinated to the desires and whims of the governor. Since the decease of Huey Long, the attention of the country for samples of dictatorship is now centered on Massachusetts."

ish bishops and priests who have found refuge in Italy and, in addressing them, will protest to the entire world against the sacrileges of the civil war.

His Holiness now is at Castle Gadolfo, his summer home, an hour's ride from Vatican City.

Each day, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, the Papal secretary of state, has gone to Castel Gandolfo to acquaint the Pope with the latest news of the general Spanish situation.

Yesterday their conversations lasted for three hours and consequently, prelates said, His Holiness has had little strength for other duties.

FEARS FOR EUROPE

The Pope, who entered his 80th year last May 31, has sought to husband his strength in recent months. However, his grave concern over the Spanish war and the possible European complications it may bring, has weakened him noticeably in the last few days.

A high prelate, prior to the birthday, disclosed the Pope's ailment was endocarditis, an inflamation of the endothelial lining membrane of the heart.

Although the Holy Father dislikes to be treated by physicians, he did undergo a lengthy medical examination in June which resulted in what prelates called "satisfactory conclusions."

His blood pressure was said to have returned to normal by the doctors found he became tired too easily and warned him to beware of gradual exhaustion.

WPA MEN WRITE ICKES' BOOK

citizen, received $1500. Both were carried on the regular payroll of the Public Works Administration.

"Honest Harold's" profits are problematical. MacMillan & Co. paid an advance royalty of $1500 to Ickes' literary agent.

Sales together with the earnings of the book when syndicated in serial form to newspapers may add materially to the amount originally paid.

Unless "Honest Harold" transferred the book's earnings to the conscience fund of the government, the taxpayers will receive no return from their investment. The "ghost" writers insist they have not receivel "one dime" of the royalties to date.

"GHOST WRITER"

"Back To Work" purports to be a first person statement by "Honest Harold" of the purposes of the Public Works Administration. The book is dedicated to Franklin Delano Roosevelt. It was copyrighted by "Honest Harold."

Actually, according to Jonathan W. Latimer, "Back To Work" was written by himself and Herbert S. Ross, an Englishman. Ross uses the pen name of Michael Ross.

In brief the genesis of "Back To Work" is as follows:

Following the publication of the "Honest Harold" book, "The New Democracy", the actual authorship of which also has been challenged, Brandt & Brandt, literary agents, conceived the idea of a book explaining the objectives of the Public Works Administration.

Contacting Michael Straus, chief of the publicity division of the Public Works Administration, Brandt & Brandt were informed the book could be supplied.

Submitting only a skeleton outline of the proposed book, Brandt & Brandt closed a contract with MacMillan & Co.

It was the understanding of Brandt & Brandt, according to the spokesmen for that organization, that "Honest Harold" was to do the actual writing.

The book was purchased, a representative of MacMillan & Co. stated, on the specific assurance that it would be writen by Secretary Ickes.

ROSS AN ALIEN

The preparation of the book, however, did not follow the plans and expectations of either the literary agents or the publishers.

It was the duty of Mr. Strauss to see that the book was delivered as per contract. Tentative offers were made to one or two well-known writers to do the work. They turned down the offer.

One of the ace men in the publicity bureau of the Department of Interior is Dr. Clark Howell Foreman. It is understood Dr. Foreman had made the acquaintance of an English writer named Michael Ross on a trip to England.

Records of the Immigration Department show Herbert S. Ross arrived in this country on April 3, 1934, on a six-month visitor's permit.

On December 11, 1934, Herbert S. Ross was placed on the payroll of the Public Works Administration. His six months having expired, he had received a six months' extension.

While on the payroll under his own name, to his associates and particularly Latimer, with whom he went to work immediately preparing the material for "Back to Work," Ross was known by his pen name of Michael.

ROSS ON VACATION

Ross remained on the payroll until March 31, 1935. He received $350 for that period of service. The finished manuscript of "Back to Work," had been delivered to Straus and, in turn, to MacMillan & Co.

Three days after completing his task, Ross sailed for England. He returned to this country on September 23, 1935, this time entering as an "immigrant coming for permanent residence."

On November 8, 1935, or six weeks and four days after his admission as an immigrant, Ross was again placed on the public works administration payroll and once more employed as a "ghost."

His new assignment called for the preparation of material to be used by the administration in defense of its policy of using federal funds to construct power plants in competition with those privately owned and operated.

At present Ross is enjoying a vacation. His "ghost" collaborator, Latimer, likewise is no longer in the employ of the Public Works Administration.

Latimer, who now is writing under his own name and receiving the royalties his pen earns, discussed over long-distance telephone his part in the preparation of "Back to Work."

Speaking from a farm in Michigan, Latimer said:

"Ross and I turned out 'Back to Work.' Ross did the research and I did the writing. We wrote every word of it."

Asked if he or Ross have participated in any profits of the book Latimer said:

"Not a dime."

LATIMER BITTER

Latimer added, with a touch of bitterness in his voice:

"I stayed until I saw a contract signed to syndicate the book through newspapers on a 50-50 basis and then I quit."

Latimer said that, while he had known Ross as Michael, he had understood that was a pen name and that his collaborator's real name is Herbert S. Ross.

Although "ghosting" for government officials is an accepted Washington policy, for some reason an air of secrecy was thrown around the writing of "Back to Work."

A small office, used normally for storage purposes on the first floor of the Department of Interior building, was cleaned out and turned over to Latimer and Ross. There the two men, free from observation, toiled.

Other employes, and there are several hundred of them in the publicity division, seldom saw Ross. Few knew of him and fewer knew him personally.

About the only time Ross appeared on the floor above, where most of the employes of the department work, was on pay days, when he received his government check.

Not even Latimer, who came in daily contact with Ross, knew the English writer to be an alien.

Although Ross returned to the country almost a year ago as an immigrant, with the announced intention of becoming a citizen, naturalization records in New York, where he had his last known residence, failed to disclose he has taken out "first papers."

The taxpayers' contribution to the private initiative of "Honest Harold," it is generally understood in the Public Works Administration's publicity bureau, did not end with the payments to the "Back to Work" "ghost" writers.

In exploiting the book throughout the country, booksellers were supplied with handsome enlargements of "Honest Harold's" picture. These, it was said, were made by Public Works Administration photographers.

Among the advertising campaigns put behind "Back to Work" was direct mailing to Public Works Administration employes. The mailing lists were prepared, it is understood, by Public Works employes on government time.

As a final move laudatory reviews were prepared in the Public Works Administration Publicity Bureau by employes and sent to newspaper book reviewers.

"Honest Harold" defended the writing of "Back to Work." He said he felt it was "a very effective avenue" of presenting to American people the story of Public Works Administration activities.

TO KEEP PROFITS

"Back to Work," Ickes said, has proved a valuable book. He pointed out it has been quoted in recent court decisions.

In a preface to the book Ickes acknowledges indebtedness for the assistance rendered by Latimer, Ross and others.

As regards profits from the book, Ickes insisted that to date there had been none. He added, however, that if any profits were earned he would keep them.

"THE BOY CASTAWAYS" BY JULES VERNE

CHAPTER 46

"I wouldn't try to go up north or straight to the east," answered Evans. The more miles we cover by sea, the better. With a good breeze, the boat could take us to some Chilean port. But the sea is extremely rough on that coast, while the channels of the Archipelago will always offer an easier crossing."

"Yes," said Briant, "but will we find an inhabited country in these parts, and the means of going back to our own land?"

"I think so," said Evans. "Here! look at the map. Do you see this great peninsula of Brunswick? . . . There at the end of Fortescue Bay, at Port Galland, ships often put into port.

"If it be necessary to go beyond, and double Forward Cape to the south of the Peninsula, there is the St. Nicholas Bay or Bougainville Bay, where most of the ships which cross the straits stop on their way. And last of all, beyond that again there is Port Famine, and more to the north, Punta Arena."

The mate was right; once they were in the straits the boat would have many places where they could put in port. Under those conditions, the return to their country was assured, without mentioning the possibilities of meeting ships going to Australia or New Zealand.

To reach these ports, it would be necessary to repair the boat, and to repair it they had to get hold of it, which would only be possible after overpowering or outwitting Walston and his gang.

The question of departure could only be solved by force, either by taking the offensive, or in remaining on the defensive. There was nothing to do until they had the crew of the Severn at their mercy.

Two days passed. Nothing of a suspicious nature had been seen by the young colonists who were observing the surrounding country from the heights of Auckland Hill. This was rather surprising to Evans, who was aware of Walston's plans and of his need to hurry.

Then the idea came to him that Walston might try to use cunning instead of force to capture French Den, its defenders, and stores.

"You know, boys," said Evans, "there were only Kate and I to tell Walston's plan of attack. Now, Walston doesn't doubt for a moment that Kate perished during the wreck.

"As for me, I'm well drowned in the river, cut down by the bullets of Rocks and Forbes.

"So Walston certainly thinks that you know nothing about him, not even the presence of the Severn sailors on your island, and that if one of them presented himself at French Den, you would give him the welcome which is given every castaway.

"Now, once the rogue is in the place, it would only be too easy to introduce his companions, which would render every resistance absolutely impossible!"

"Well," declared Briant, "if Walston or any of them comes, we'll receive him with a round of shots."

"Unless it's more advisable to receive him hat in hand!" observed Gordon.

"Well! Perhaps that would be better," said the mate. "Craftiness against craftiness. Whatever happens, we'll know what to do."

Yes! It would be wise to act with the greatest care. Indeed, if things turned out well, if Evans could get possession of the Severn's boat, the hour of deliverance might not be far off.

The following morning passed uneventfully, but a little before sunset, Webb and Cross, on watch on the cliff, came down, signalling the approach of two men on the southern shore of the lake. Kate and Evans looked through one of the openings in the storeroom and saw two of Walston's companions, Rock and Forbes.

"Evidently," said the mate, "they are going to act by cunning, and they'll come here as sailors who have just escaped from a wreck."

"What'll we do?" asked Briant.

"Receive them well," said Evans.

"I'll never be able to do it," cried Briant.

"I'll take care of them," promised Gordon.

"That's right," replied the mate. "And above all don't let them have a suspicion of our presence. Kate and I will show ourselves when the time comes."

They Meet!

Evans and Kate hid at the end of one of those deep cupboards in the passage. A few moments later Gordon, Briant, Doniphan and Baxter ran forward on the bank of the River Zealand. When they saw them, the two men shammed great surprise, to which Gordon answered with no less surprise on his part.

Rock and Forbes seemed worn out with fatigue. When they reached the stream, these words were exchanged from bank to bank:

"Who are you?" cried the boys.

"Castaways, who have just been lost on the south of this island with the boat of the three-mast Severn."

"You are English?"

"No, American."

"And your companions?"

"They've perished. We alone escaped the wreck, and we're exhausted. Who are you?"

"The colonists of Chairman Island."

"Will you take pity on us and receive us, for we are destitute?"

"Castaways always have a right to assistance," replied Gordon. "You will be welcome."

At a sign from Gordon, Moko paddled the yawl across and brought over the two sailors.

Doubtless, Walston had no choice, but the face of Rock was not made to inspire confidence, even in children little used to decipher human features.

Although he tried to give himself an air of honesty, what a type of bandit that Rock was! With his narrow forehead, his head large at the back and his aggressive jaw!

Forbes—the one in whom every feeling of humanity was perhaps not quite dead, according to Kate—made a better appearance.

Both of them played their role of sham castaways. However, for fear of exciting suspicions if they let themselves be questioned, they gave as an excuse for reticence that they were exhausted, and asked to be allowed to spend the night at French Den. They were taken there at once.

As they went in Gordon noticed they could not resist looking around with too much curiosity. They appeared surprised to see the colony's weapons, especially the cannon trained across the opening.

The young colonists did not have to continue their role as hosts since Rock and Forbes were anxious to go to bed, putting off until the next day the story of their adventures.

"A bundle of hay will be sufficient," said Rock, "but since we'd not like to be in your way, if you have another room . . ."

"Yes," answered Gordon. "The one which we use as a kitchen, and you can use it until tomorrow."

Rock and his companion passed into the storeroom, examining it carefully. They particularly noted that the door opened on to the river.

A Cruel Plot

Truly one could not be more hospitable to those poor castaways than the boys of French Den were. The two rogues were probably saying to themselves that it would be easy to get the upper hand over those children and that there was no reason to strain their imagination on that point!

At a given hour, Rock and Forbes were to open the door of the storeroom and Walston, who would be prowling on the bank with his four companions, would become master of French Den.

About nine o'clock, when Rock and Forbes were supposedly asleep, Moko came in and threw himself on his bunk, ready to give the alarm.

Briant and the others had remained in the hall, where they were joined by Evans and Kate. Things had happened just as the mate had foreseen, and he did not doubt for a moment that Walston was in the neighborhood, waiting to get inside.

"Let's be on our guard!" said Evans.

Two hours went by and then Moko's attention was attracted by a slight noise. In the gleam of the beacon he saw Rock and Forbes crawl towards the door which had ben reinforced by a heap of stones, a barricade which would have been almost impossible to knock down.

The two sailors began to remove the stones, which they deposited one by one against the right wall. In a few minutes the door was completely cleared. They only had to take out the bar which fastened the door on the inside, for the entrance to French Den to be freed.

But at the moment when Rock, after having taken out the bar, was opening the door, a hand fell on his shoulder. He turned and recognized the mate, on whose face fell the light of the beacon.

"Evans!" he cried, "Evans here!"

"Come, boys," ordered the mate.

Bryant and his comrades rushed into the storeroom. Forbes, seized by four of the strongest, Baxter, Wilcox, Doniphan and Briant, was put out of action and could not escape.

As for Rock, with a rapid movement he pushed Evans away, while stabbing him with his knife which just grazed his left arm. Then he rushed through the open door. He had not gone ten feet when the mate had fired on Rock. Apparently the fugitive was not touched, for no cry was heard.

"A thousand thunders! I've missed the rogue!" cried Evans, "as for the other it will always be one less! . . ."

And, knife in hand, he lifted his arm over Forbes.

"Mercy! Mercy!" begged the wretch.

"Yes! Mercy, Evans!" cried Kate who threw herself between the mate and Forbes. "Be merciful, since he saved my life!"

"So be it!" said Evans. "I'm willing Kate, at least for the moment." And he proceeded to tie up Forbes securely, and then put him into one of the cupboards in the passage.

Then the door of the storeroom was closed and barricaded, and all remained on guard until daybreak.

The next day, although the night had been without sleep, no one thought of taking an hour's rest. There was no doubt, now, that Walston would use force, since craftiness had failed. Rock, who had escaped the mate's shot, most probably had rejoined Walston and told him that, since his hostile moves had been discovered, he could only enter French Den now by forcing the doors!

At dawn, Evans, Briant, Doniphan and Gordon went out of the hall, while keeping themselves on guard. Everything was quiet around French Den, and Phann gave no sign of restlessness.

The ground showed traces of many footprints close to French Den. They indicated that Walston and his gang had come right up to the river, waiting for the door to be opened for them. But there were no traces of blood on the sand, proof that Rock had not even been wounded by the mate's shot.

But there was still a question to solve. Had Walston, like Rock and Forbes, come by the south of Family Lake, or had he come down from the north? In that case Rock must have rejoined him in Traps Woods.

It was decided to question Forbes about which road Walston had followed. Would Forbes speak, and if he spoke would he tell the truth? Would gratefulness to Kate, who had interceded for his life, stir some good feeling in his heart?

Evans untied Forbes, brought him out, and said:

"The surprise that you and Rock planned has failed. It's important that I know Walston's plans, of which you must be aware of. Will you answer my questions?"

Forbes lowered his head. Not wishing to look at Evans or Kate or the boys, he kept his head lowered and remained silent.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FACIAL GYMNASTICS are the latest thing in exercise. Smiling exercises 13 muscles and gives your face a lift. Frowning takes even more muscles—but the lines pull downward. Faces need exercise to lift the muscles up and to prevent the sagging lines of age, so perk up your face by using the flat underskin muscles.

Here are the rules for making faces:

Apply tissue cream or muscle oil and leave on while exercising. You must lubricate the skin to make it pliable and to avoid exercise crinkles. Your facial exercises should be taken when you are rested. As with all exercise, begin slowly, think of moving the muscles under the skin, and always relax these delicate muscles gradually, never suddenly.

Etchings of Age

Age makes its first etchings in the lines at the side of the mouth, and from the nostrils to the corners of the mouth.

The tiny lines at the side of the mouth that look like parenthesis can be entirely smoothed away with this exercise.

Open the mouth to its fullest extent, straight up and down. Do not spread the lips at the corners. Without the slightest closing of the jaw and teeth, draw the lips together. You will not be able to close the lips entirely. Perform the exercise slowly gradually tensing and just as gradually relaxing all the muscles. If you do this exercise correctly there will be a tenseness in all these little muscles, and the skin about the mouth will be smooth and firm.

To lift the sagging lines from the nose to the mouth:

Open the mouth vertically, as in the preceding exercise. Close the eyelids and elevate the brows just as high as possible. Holding this expression, try to close the lips without closing the jaw, as in the first exercise. Concentrate on keeping the brows raised to draw up on the muscles underneath the sagging lines.

You will want to send for the new leaflet, "Facial Gymnastics," which will help you to bring out your better face. These facial exercises will smooth out the lines of age and neglect. Do not expect immediate results, for it takes time to strengthen muscles and lift sagging lines. Just as exercise of any part of the body improves it, however, so exercise of the face and throat muscles gives lovelier contour.

The leaflet, "Facial Gymnastics," will be sent free to any readers who encloses stamped, addressed envelope with her request.

The note above to Mrs. Lewis is off to a good start.

It should continue like this: ". . . at our country cottage. We hope you can arrive early Saturday and stay until Sunday afternoon. ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Woman Bares Heartaches With Husband Bitten By 'Gambling Bug'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I'd rather have smallpox. I'm sure I'd prefer scarlet fever and pneumonia, even if I had to have the two at the same time. Yes, I'd accept any germ that chanced to come my way in preference to being bitten by the "gambling bug."

Smallpox might scar my face and leave me terribly sick, but I'd come out of it, I know, with a clean conscience and healthy mind. Scarlet fever and pneumonia might render me a cripple, but, somehow, I'd manage to carry on.

Which, dear friends, is far more than could be said of me had I taken to gambling away the little money I have and to staking my future on the running of a horse or the turning of a wheel.

Gambling is good fun in its place. All of us like the thrill of collecting after the race is run, or the wheel turned. That's human nature, and neither you nor I can change it.

But gambling ceases to be fun and becomes a curse the moment a man or woman gets the idea that "smart folks" can live without working, that life's biggest profits are by chance rather than effort.

The person who entertains that thought for long is doomed. He is past salvation, so far as my and your attempts to reform him are concerned. His only hope is in himself, in the rare possibility that continued bad luck will kill the virus of chance that has entered his veins.

Gamblers, like drunkards, seldom reform, and only a charlatan would offer much hope to a man or woman who happens to be married to one.

Among those unfortunate people is Mrs. J. F., who writes me this interesting letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband and I both work, but recently we had to give up housekeeping because he is an incurable gambler and his check seldom came home on pay day.

Since we were married, I have bought my own clothes and his, thinking it nice to show my love in this way. He looks for nothing in clothes. We now live with my invalid mother, to whom I have always contributed a small amount.

Now my husband has lost his job and, although he gets a small pension, he contributes nothing at home, and continues his gambling. He seems to have no sense of responsibility and never a thought for the future.

We have a joint bank account, and, needless to say, I do most of the depositing. Recently he has been drawing on this account without my knowledge or consent, and has gambled it away.

What am I to do? Married five years and the hope of a home of my own is about as far off as it was when I walked to the altar. Do you think each should have a separate banking account?

MRS. J. F.

MY DEAR FRIEND:

I certainly do. As long as you support your husband, buying his food and clothes, you will have an incurable gambler on your hands. Keep your money. Spend it on yourself and your invalid mother. Let your husband learn the humiliation of ragged clothes and the agony of an empty stomach.

That should cure him. If it doesn't, I don't know what will.

Frankly, you can blame yourself somewhat for your husband's present conduct. You made life too easy for him. You treated him as a baby instead of as a husband. And now, after five years of marriage, you complain about having an overgrown spoiled child as a problem.

As long as a gambler can get money easily and without effort, he will offer it all on the altar of chance. Only the hardest of hard knocks will return him to the road of common sense.

The best advice I can give you is to look out for yourself, and do not spend your hard-earned money on one who is utterly irresponsible.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

KATHERINE TELLS OF MEETING STRANGER

CHAPTER 81

THERE WAS urgency in Katherine's voice and in the touch of her hand upon my arm, while the fact that she had whispered her admonition to hurry for she had something she must tell me betrayed that she did not wish Mary, left behind in the nursery with the baby, to hear the confidence.

I responded to that urgent note in action instead of words and did not reply until we had hurried through my door and I had pushed the bolt into its socket.

"Don't be frightened!" she adjured me. Then she said in low tones, "It probably doesn't mean anything but I had a rather odd experience on the way to Dr. Gibson's.

"Have you among your acquaintances, social or business, a slight, youngish man of medium height, with dark skin, jet black hair, mustache and Vandyke beard, wearing dark motoring glasses and giving a subtle impression of ill health?"

My composure was not proof against this disclosure, and I started violently.

"Ah, then you do know him!" Katherine commented.

"No, I do not. I am sure I never saw him. But he was described to me less than half an hour ago."

"Would you mind telling me about it before I tell you of my experience?" Katherine asked.

"Not in the least," I rejoined, and forthwith related the story of Jerry Ticer's experience with the mysterious, swarthy stranger whom Jerry had described as a "furriner."

FITS HER IMPRESSION

"That fits in with my impression," she said slowly. "But I don't believe he is a foreigner at all. I believe that his accent is assumed, that his skin is artificially browned, and that his hair, beard and mustache have been dyed.

"They're not false—I looked at him very closely. He must have been at great pains to grow them. And you say Jerry saw that his eyes were blue?"

"When the man's dark motoring glasses fell off, he saw them, yes," I answered.

"He's using a disguise, all right," she said. "That probably means he is known to someone around here, and so fears recognition. But I'll swear I never set eyes on him before. I studied him, too; tried to reconstruct him—his height, his slenderness, his apparent youth, with altered coloring and no beard or mustache. But I couldn't reconcile even his imagined appearance with that of anyone I ever have seen. But this isn't telling you what he did and said."

TELLS HER EXPERIENCE

I gripped the arms of my chair with the determination that I would not hurry her story. But it seemed hours instead of fractions of a second before she went on.

"I think he must have been keeping an eye on the farmhouse," she began, "for when I drove out on my way to Dr. Gibson's, I am sure his car—at least the one he was in later—was drawn up in front of that farmhouse down the road toward the turnpike.

"I thought nothing more about it until, coming out of Dr. Gibson's, I saw the same car parked a little way down the street and noticed that the occupant of the car, whom I could not see distinctly, was watching me.

"The impression was so strong that instead of going into the telegraph office as I had intended, I went back into Dr. Gibson's house and asked Mrs. Gibson if, later in the afternoon, when she was sure the man was not around, she would telegraph the money for the crib to Mrs. Gibbs. Then I went out again, to find the man walking toward me."

Secrets of Natural Loveliness

POSED BY ELEANORE WHITNEY

By DONNA GRACE

WE ARE frequently asked for various cosmetic uses of tomatoes and other vegetables. Women tell us when they prepare the tomatoes and work with them in the process of canning they find it makes the hands white.

There are various ways of using fruits and other things for beautifying the skin, and many of them may be quite effective.

Add to the juice a dry substance such as corn meal, cornstarch, almond meal or powdered oatmeal. The powdered oatmeal comes all ready prepared. Mix enough of the powder to make a thin paste the consistency of mayonnaise.

Begin the facial by cleansing the skin with cleansing cream or soap and water, then pat dry and spread the pack over the face and neck. Leave it on for ten minutes and then remove with tepid water. After that, apply a tissue cream, using the regular massage movements as they are given in my Facial Massage Method. When the cream is removed, prepare an astringent or skin tonic.

Place three cubes of ice in a bowl and add three tablespoonfuls of water and one teaspoonful of the astringent or a skin tonic. Some girls prefer to use toilet water, and when this is done use only a few drops.

The tomato juice may be used as a lotion, if you prefer.

I will be glad to send you my Facial Massage Method and Packs for the Skin, if you will enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for each.

Many a romance has been marred by a fret over a short vamp or a high heel. And it is certain that the major frowns in youth are frowns of pain and bad temper, so ill-fitting shoes can well be blamed for the first important frowns, if you are foolish enough to wear them.

There are a few simple things that we ourselves can do to relieve tired, aching feet. I will give you one that is used by some of the leading foot specialists. It is the epsom salts bath.

Dissolve ¼ cup of epsom salts in about two gallons of hot water. Immerse the feet for a period of two minutes, then spray or rinse in cold water for about ½ minute. Repeat this process twice, finishing with the cold water and a brisk rub.

The same process may be employed, and with good results also, by substituting the same amount of bicarbonate of soda or boric acid powder instead of the epsom salts. Three or four such baths a week will be very refreshing.

You will find my Foot Treatment very helpful. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply and address Donna Grace, Boston Evening American.

Festive Party Fare

By MARTHA LEE

THERE IS frequent opportunity, these summer days, for serving light and festive party fare. A mid-season bridge is always at hand and there are usually a few vacation guests to entertain.

It's no problem at all to find special occasions, but it is sometimes difficult to plan a suitable menu. Guests like simple food that leaves the hostess free to spend her time with them.

It's no fun at all to know she has worn herself to a frazzle over an elaborate dish. So when it comes your turn to entertain, serve a cool refreshing salad and a few dainty sandwiches. When they are well chosen so the flavors blend subtly, such salad sandwich combinations as these are the perfect choice for skillful summer entertaining.

MOLDED WALDORF SALAD

1 pkg. lemon-flavored gelatine
1 cup chopped apples
¾ cup diced celery
½ cup chopped walnuts
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon salt

Prepare gelatine according to directions on package. Cool until gelatine begins to thicken, then add chopped apples, celery, walnut, paprika and salt. Mix thoroughly. Pour into individual molds rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold in cups of crisp lettuce and garnish with whipped cream mayonnaise dressing made by combining 1-3 cup whipping cream, whipped, with 1-3 cup mayonnaise.

OLIVE AND NUT SANDWICHES

½ cup chopped stuffed olives
¼ cup chopped nut meats
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Combine olives, nut meats, salt and mayonnaise. Spread between thin slices of buttered white bread. Cut crosswise in halves and arrange attractively in sandwich plate. (Trim crusts if desired).

SPECIAL ROQUEFORT CHEESE SANDWICHES

¼ lb. Roquefort cheese
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 cups finely chopped celery

Cream cheese and combine with Worcestershire sauce and celery. Spread between thin slices of buttered white bread and cut attractively.

CHICKEN OLIVETTE SANDWICHES

2 cups minced cold cooked chicken.
1 dozen stuffed olives, finely chopped.

Combine minced chicken and olives. Add sufficient mayonnaise to moisten filling so it will spread easily. Spread between slices of bread which have been spread lightly with mayonnaise. Remove crusts if dainty sandwiches are desired.

Health

Caisson's Disease

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

FOR CENTURIES little was known about the atmosphere, the air we breathe and its relation to life and health.

Indeed, many superstitions regarding it were handed down from father to son. Within the past century, however, many of these ancient, and sometimes silly, beliefs have pretty definite scientific knowledge in this field.

Yet, the average person pays little attention to the atmosphere in which we live. Most of us are content to take it for granted. We realize, of course, that it is essential to life, but are not familiar with its many changes and how they influence health.

NORMAL PRESSURE

The normal atmospheric pressure is 15 pounds to the square inch. This means that an individual average in size, and living at sea level, has upon his body a total pressure of more than 15 tons. This seems enough to do harm, but, as a matter of fact, this pressure is essential to health and the maintenance of bodily function.

The various tissues, fluids and joints of the body are influenced by the pressure. We can only breathe because of it and the very bones of our bodies are kept in right position by this pressure.

Any change in pressure results in definite change with the human mechanism. For this reason, when we are subjected to unusually high altitudes, as in mountain climbing or in flying, we become aware of weakness, severe headaches and nausea. The hands and feet become cold, the pulse weakens and breathing becomes faster, deeper and more difficult.

Current Cheap Money Cannot Last Forever

Test of Credit Supply Seen Likely After Budget Is Balanced

By M. S. Rukeyser

(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

New York, Aug. 27—The recent moderate increase in commercial loans made by American banks raises the question whether the current subnormal interest rates are merely a temporary phenomenon.

At the beginning of the century, when we were in a similar period of low interest rates, a great life insurance company sent out a questionnaire to the leading bankers and economists to ask their opinion as to the future trend of money rates. The prevailing opinion was that they would stay low, but hardly was the ink on the report dry when a prolonged long term uptrend got under way.

Prophecy is always hazardous, but experience indicates that the extraordinary cheap money rates of the last year or two are a departure from normal and cannot be expected to endure forever. They are in part the expression of the cheap money policy of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve.

M. S. Rukeyser

An economic journal has recently sounded out opinion on the longer term outlook for interest rates, and the majority of replies seems to indicate an expectation that the present level of money rates is unlikely to last indefinitely. Though they predict higher rates in time, the financiers and economists interrogated do not believe that they will rise as high as the mean reached between 1920 and 1930.

For several weeks commercial loans have been rising. They recently stand $463,000,000 higher than a year ago, reflecting a rise of 14 per cent. It should be borne in mind that the upturn started from an extremely low level, and that present loans are a mere drop in the bucket in comparison with the loanable resources of the banking system. Even so, the rate of increase is the most rapid in 16 years.

A decade ago, member banks invested 44 per cent of their resources in commercial loans. Today they stand at 15 per cent.

The current change indicates little more than a correction of the complete paralysis in commercial borrowing at the banks, and reflects the rise in general business, as well as the bullish expectations for Autumn trade.

G. M. TO BUILD

Large Plant

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—General Motors Corporation announced today it will build one of the largest assembly plants for passenger cars in the world at Linden, N. J.

The plant, which will assemble motors for delivery to the east coast region and overseas territories, when fully equipped for maximum operation will represent an outlay of about $3,575,000.

Construction will begin immediately and is scheduled to be completed in December.

BUMPS On Recovery ROAD

STRIKES, WAR FEAR, ELECTION

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Writer

After two weeks down on the farm — it hardly seems that long—we find:

The stock market some five points lower. Business continuing to hold its own, contrary to the normal trend at this season.

A new European war scare— the third one this year.

The start in earnest of the Presidential campaign.

Development of a serious labor strike situation in scattered sections of the country, with a complete breakdown in the government agencies constitutionally required to support law and order, and Threatened imports of farm products, as a result of the high prices brought about by the drouth and the crop destruction program of the Washington administration.

There is nothing alarming in the stock market's behavior. In fact, it could decline further and still be within so-called technical bounds. It is now less than six points from its highest level in the past five years.

But as for there being anything more than a correction hardly seems in the cards. A major business recovery is under way, and there can be no bear stock market in such a period.

The November election will determine the soundness or unsoundness of that recovery, but it will not halt the forward advance regardless of the result.

Governor Landon's election will assure a more sound and sane recovery, while if Mr. Roosevelt is returned there can be no such assurances. The Roosevelt brand of recovery will leave the country in the end with such a headache that 1929 will seem good times, if history means anything.

The European war scare seems made out of the same cloth of the other two—the Ethiopian affair and the German rearming. It is, though, more serious, for in Spain may be the answer which way is Europe heading—to the Left or to the Right—to a distribution of property or to its conservation.

The same struggle is going on here, as pointed out in this column, just before the vacation. Roosevelt to a milder degree represents the Left, or so-called Popular Front. Governor Landon, the conservative, constitutional order of things.

The labor strike situation is tied in with this. In the recent cases where plants have been forced to close down by radical agitators, the fault lies with government officials who have refused to protect property of employers and the safety of employes who desire to work.

Every person has a right to strike, but at the same time every person has a right to work in safety. In recent instances local law enforcement agenices have only recognized the former. This breaking down of law enforcement is a serious threat to business recovery.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Note: Below is an article on a special phase of model plane building and flying written by Sydney Wallerstein of Dorchester, a Junior Birdman who is "going places" in model plane building and flying. The views expressed are his own and not necessarily those of the Junior Birdmen organization.

By SYDNEY WALLERSTEIN

"For every action there is an opposite and equal reaction" is a well-known statement of fact. The power that turns a propeller from left to right, also tends to revolve the airplane from right to left.

This unseen force which makes the airplane act opposite the "tick" of the "prop" is called torque. It is to the airplane what the "kick" is to a gun. In a small firearm this "kick" is the jolt received by the arm of the person firing the weapon. A single propelled model plane in motion receives a steady "kick" from the torque of the propeller and the torque must be offset by "wash in" and "wash out," or as some model builders prefer to express it, by providing more right circle.

Sydney Wallerstein

Right circle is bad because when the plane circles right, the torque keeps the craft banking away from the circle, thus adding sluggishness and the danger of spinning.

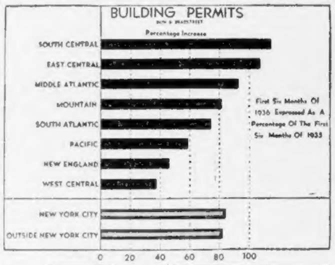
To prevent torque from lifting the right wing and lowering the left, raise the trailing edge of the right wing and lower the leading edge of the left. This will give the left wing more lift and decrease the lift in the right wing.

The nearer this is done to the tips of the wings, the less warping will be necessary and thus there will be less drag on the model. With less drag and no torque, flights are sure to be smoother and longer.

Torque varies with the size and speed of the propeller. With a large, fast-ticking "prop" the plane has so great a tendency to spin that it is often necessary to add a little weight to the right wing after "washing" the wing.

On a twin pusher the two "props" have two different forces of torque. Thus if the model is correctly built there will be no left or right bank.

Value of Building Permits



1936 Half Gains Over 1935 Half

According to Dun & Bradstreet the total value of all building permits in 215 cities throughout the country for the first six months of this year was $463,643,585, as compared with $253,244,099 in the first half of 1935.

The chart shows the per cent change in building permits for the first half of this year as compared with the similar period last year in different sections of the country.

The expansion in building operations was particularly marked in the south central group of states, where the value of permits increased 114.9 per cent over last year. Sharp increases were also registered in the east central states (107.9 per cent) and in the middle Atlantic states (93.8 per cent).

The hatched bars at the bottom of the chart show that the value of building permits increased 84.8 per cent in New York city as compared with an 82.5 per cent increase for the rest of the 214 cities included in the report.

Gold Receipts Increase

The U. S. district assay office figures here today indicated a 1936 increase of $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 over 1935 in yellow metal receipts, mostly from Alaska.

Perry S. Myers, weigh clerk, said he had weighed in $10,077,000 worth of gold for Assayer George L. Swarva since January 1. The total for the fiscal year ending last June 30 was $18,809,000.

Alaska accounted for about $16,000,000 of gold last year.

Most of it comes from dredging and hydraulic methods. There still is much of the crude, hand-labor sluice box mining by individuals but from gargantuan dredges and high pressure hydraulic developments Alaska's new gold era is being born.

OFFICE EQUIPMENT

Sales Gain Contra-Seasonally

New York, Aug. 27—Both orders and shipments of office appliances have shown strong contra-seasonal tendencies this summer, according to the Standard Statistics Company, of New York. Instead of showing the usual decline, July business in many divisions was fully as good as, and in some instances better than, late spring sales. August volumes have held similarly well.

Vacation schedules have cut down production in some lines, but shipments remain heavy. Backlogs of unfilled orders are reported to be the heaviest on record for some companies and considerably higher than a year ago for all concerns. This factor alone suggests that third quarter shipments for most companies should be as large as in the second quarter.

Continuing recent trends, the largest relative sales gains are of accounting, calculating and similar equipment. These lines were the last to pick up from depression influences, and current sales comparisons are with relatively low totals a year ago. Typewriters, exceeding earlier expectations, have continued to gain, although at a slower pace. Markets for this type of equipment are nearing their normal replacement basis.

Sales prospects for the fall are generally favorable. Office appliance demand in recent periods has been showing a close correlation with trends in general business, and should continue this relation. Indications are that the trade will enjoy its best fall since 1929, although sales will still be well below 1929.

Maine Central's Revenues Up

Portland, Me., Aug. 27 (AP)—The Maine Central Railroad today reported increased revenues during July, due largely to heavier vacation travel in Maine and lowering of basic fares to two cents a mile.

The road reported it charged into July operating expenses this year $36,880 for flood damage.

Revenues totaled $963,041, compared with $875,388 in July, 1935. Expenses amounted to $738,872, as against $666,137 for the same period a year ago.

A 10 per cent increase in all forms of revenue, totaling $87,652, was reported for the month.

CUBAN SUGAR

Exports Down

Cuban sugar exports from January 1 to August 22 totaled 1,826,476 long tons, raw value, against 1,892,968 tons in like period 1935, a decrease of 66,492 tons, or approximately 3.5 per cent, according to Havana advices received by Lamborn & Co.

Sidelights Of Wall Street

New York, Aug. 27—Greater recent speculative activity in Murray Corp. stock reflects widespread discussion of a more promising dividend outlook as a result of the federal tax on undistributed profits.

Only two quarterly cash dividends of 70 cents each have been paid on the stock since the company came into existence in 1926.

Expectation that payments will be resumed this year is accompanying estimates that 1936 net will approximate between $1.75 and $2 a share. It is argued that rather than pay a large government tax, the company is likely to share these profits with shareholders before the end of the year. Some brokerage firms forecast that the payment may amount to as much as $1 a share and possibly $1.50 a share.

Rising Values Add To Purchasing Power

In a discussion of monetary inflation, a well-known Stock Exchange firm calls attention to the increased purchasing power of the country resulting from the appreciation in the value of commodities and securities. It states that since 1933 listed stocks have risen 65 per cent in value; bonds 21 per cent; commodities 42 per cent; new corporate financing has increased 485 per cent in dollar value; all bank deposits are 28 per cent higher and the dollar value of the existing gold supply 164 per cent higher. All these higher values, it comments, have added to the purchasing power of the people.

Getting Rid of Old Airplanes

United Air Lines is buying 20 more new Douglas twin-motor airplanes, costing approximately $110,000 each, and the question arises: "What does the line do with the planes it retires to make way for the new ones?" This mystery was cleared up yesterday by W. A. Patterson, president of the company. United Air sells its retired planes, he told the New York American. The planes retired are in A-1 condition, with plenty of air miles still in them. United has been retiring planes as a rule because newer models prove more economical in operation. Strange as it seems, United has always found a ready market for the planes it has retired, and they have been sold at their appraised worth. New feeder lines are always being started all over the country. These feeder companies buy the retired planes of the big companies, and return them to passenger operation. Foreign air lines and foreign governments are two other good customers for planes the transport companies wish to retire.

Douglas Gets Big Air Orders

Douglas Aircraft Co. has booked a sizable volume of new orders most recently, it was learned yesterday. United Air Lines has ordered $2,200,000 worth of planes. American Airlines has given Douglas a $2,000,000 order. TWA has ordered another $1,000,000 of planes from the company. In addition, it is understood sizable orders have been received from KLM, the Dutch air line, and from the Soviet.

Stock Exchange Sales Higher

The dollar value of sales on all registered securities exchanges in July amounted to $2,057,844,758, an increase of 42.1 per cent over the value of sales in June and an increase of 44.7 per cent over the value of sales in July, 1935. Stock sales (including rights) had a value of $1,765,391,249, an increase of 51.6 per cent over June. Bond sales were valued at $292,442,992, an increase of 3.1 per cent.

Total sales of stock in July (including rights) were 64,728,459 shares, or 47.3 per cent above June's figure. Total principal amount of bonds sold was $350,594,325, an increase of 5.5 per cent.

The two leading New York exchanges accounted for 95.4 per cent of the value of sales on all registered exchanges; 94.7 per cent of stock sales and 99.8 per cent of bond sales.

The dollar value of sales on all exempt exchanges in July was $2,013,331, an increase of 87.4 per cent over June.

Bar Gold

London, Aug. 27 (AP)—Bar gold advanced ½ penny to 138s. 2½d. (sterling price equivalent to $34.77).

Smallest Amount Since 1919

The farm real estate tax bill in 1935 was $365,000,000, the smallest amount since 1919. The bars on the chart show that taxes rose from $218,000,000 in 1913 to the peak of $567,000,000 in 1929, and have since declined to the present figure.

The solid line on the chart shows the index of farm real estate taxes per acre, as compiled by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The index rose steadily from 1913 to 1929, and then dropped sharply. Considering physical values, the rate was about 24 cents per acre in 1913; by 1929 it rose to 59 cents. Estimates for 1935 place the rate at 37 cents per acre.

Dr. Eric Englund, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, states that the downward trend in farm taxes since 1929 represents an adjustment to the lower levels of farm income. The reduction in taxes has been accomplished in part by cutting school budgets, lowering teachers' salaries, reducing the length of school terms, and in some instances by closing schools altogether.

ADVERTISING GAINS

For 25th Consecutive Week

Chicago, Aug. 27—For the 25th consecutive week, the volume of newspaper advertising placed by the merchants of 66 major cities exceeded that placed in the same cities during the corresponding week of 1935, figures for the week ended Aug. 15 show.

The figures, compiled by Advertising Age, national advertising newspaper, show that in the 66 cities measured retail advertising volume for the week ended Aug. 15 totaled 14,542,055 lines, compared with 13,225,114 lines during the corresponding week of last year. This is an increase of 1,316,941 lines, or 9.9 per cent.

For the year to date, the publication reports, retail advertising in the reporting cities has totaled 539,661,848 lines, against 511,442,846 lines during the same period of 1935, for an increase of 28,219,002 lines, or 5.5 per cent.

An interesting indication of the trend, Advertising Age reports, is that the weekly gain for every week since May 9 has exceeded the average gain for the year to date. This would indicate that May, June, July and August thus far are relatively better, when compared with 1935, than were the earlier months of the year.

'Gas' Inventories Cut Further

A draft of 882,000 barrels on gasoline stocks, a stepping up in operations of refineries to record levels of early this year, and a moderate reduction in crude oil production featured the oil industry the week ended August 22. As the industry approaches the end of its heavy gasoline consumption season there are indications that it will face the winter months with gasoline stocks at economic working levels.

However, one school of thought feels that current crude output is nearing dangerously high levels and unless curbed may constitute a menace to proper inventory balance. Concern was expressed at the end of March over the fact that the heavy gasoline consuming period began with record inventories of around 74,000,000 barrels.

These stocks have been substantially liquidated, and by the end of September probably will be about 52,000,000 barrels.

GIFFORD 'The Tops' AT 40

ECONOMIC ROYALIST

President Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance at Philadelphia, sneeringly referred to "economic royalists" who have "carved new dynasties" and who have "impressed" into their "royal service the whole structure of modern life."

Who are America's "economic royalists?" And what have they done to enthrone America as the foremost industrial nation in the world?

This is the fifth of a series of articles in answer to these questions.

By B. C. FORBES

The presidency of the world's largest enterprise, employing the largest number of workers, filling the largest number of orders daily, owned by the largest number of stockholders, was won by an American when only forty.

Many who scaled the summits of success regard themselves as supermen.

The man who accomplished this unique achievement insists that he is only an ordinary sort of fellow, that he has always worked only normal hours, that he never indulged in day-dreams about becoming a big shot, that he had only one ambition on each rung of the ladder: to fill the job the very best he knew how and to fill it, if possible better than it had ever been filled before. He still has his own idea of what constitutes genuine success—and what doesn't.

Walter S. Gifford

This "economic royalist's" work habits, career, philosophy, possess unusual appeal to average Americans, because they suggest that possession of superhuman qualities is not necessary to climb to the top.

He works the regulation 5½ days a week, does not take work home at night, enjoys a rational amount of recreation. He earned his rise by nothing more spectacular than making it his business to ascertain facts, study their meaning, then formulate plans and policies in harmony with sound deductions drawable therefrom.

He started in life with such a poor physique that he was unable to compete in athletics at school or college. He applied himself to study and particularly to omnivorous reading. He finished high school at 15, too young to enter college. When 19 he had finished Harvard's four-year course in three years, and graduated cum laude, with credits to spare.

Years ago, when the redoubtable Theodore N. Vail was the American Telephone & Telegraph Company's presiding genius, a junior executive said to me one day: "I want you to come down and meet a young man in our organization. He is only our statistician. But you can take it from me that one day he will be president."

I went. And met Statistician Walter S. Gifford. Sure enough, he became President Gifford, in 1925.

So masterly has this "economic royalist" administered the affairs of his far-flung business empire that, alone among the mammoth corporations of America, he has maintained unbroken its pre-boom dividend rate of $9 a share all through the gruelling depression.

Just as he resisted temptation and pressure to raise the dividend rate, split up the shares, and indulge in other popular boom-time exploits, Gifford has never swerved from his definitely-charted course, never given way to panickyness—and his steadfastness has been rewarded by revival of earnings sufficient to cover the 9 per cent dividend.

His definition of success appeals to me more than any I ever received from other business giants:

"Success in life is relative. In my judgment, success means making the most of such ability, personality and physique as you have. Don't measure your success against others, but against your own potentialities. Never fret because somebody else has done better. If you become imbued with this philosophy of life and achieve the sincere feeling that you are doing the best you are capable of, you have attained as much success as any man can attain."

Walter C. Teagle's contribution to the development of America will be described in the next article.

MACHINERY Sales Maintained

"Helped somewhat by urgent foreign demands for deliveries, machinery and machine tool orders have been well maintained during August," says American Machinist.

Inquiries are very active in every industrial center and orders are being taken at a satisfactory rate. Shortages of skilled machinists in most cities are worrying managements. Strikes in Cincinnati and Oakland are the exceptions in an otherwise placid labor situation."

LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE FORMS IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27.—Imbued with the spirit of the western pioneers who banded themselves together to drive lawbreakers from their midst, the newly-formed Law and Order League held today [illegible] Seattle citizens [illegible] pledge to return [illegible] government to the city [illegible].

The organization began functioning along [illegible] lines following a meeting of its sponsors Tuesday night, in which a temporary chairman was elected and an executive committee of six was named to [illegible].

The league was formed after the complete breakdown of constituted authority in connection with the closing of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer by picketing groups of [illegible] Communists [illegible].

REIGN OF TERROR

[illegible] C. Kirk Hirst [illegible] was named temporary chairman of the league.

A census of every home in the city was planned [illegible] campaign for law and order.

Meanwhile [illegible] newspaper publishers of Washington and Oregon met here [illegible] to consider the grave threat to freedom of the press [illegible] the Post-Intelligencer [illegible].

MEETING CALLED

The meeting was called by the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association and was presided over by S. M. Walsh, [illegible] of the Oregon Journal of Portland [illegible].

Members of the [illegible] Washington [illegible] smaller cities and of the Washington State Newspaper Association [illegible].

AH, TRUFFLES!

U. S. IN A QUANDARY

Washington, Aug. 27—After secreting a batch of French [illegible]

"There are three approved ways to hunt truffles," said Dr. F. B. Lambert, "with hogs, dogs or flies—"

"Wait a minute, Doctor," interrupted your breathless correspondent, "what is a truffle?"

[illegible]

"It is a rare delicacy," he explained, "and once a truffle eater, always one. The only trouble about French truffles is that we don't grow them and they come high imported."

[illegible]

"There is no way to tell with the naked eye," said Dr. Lambert, "whether you've got a truffle. It grows from 2 to 8 inches beneath the surface of the soil. Hogs, dogs and flies can smell them out."

[illegible]

"When we think our truffles are ready for pulling," he said, "I believe we'll use the dogs, although we will probably have to import them, too, until we train some."

[illegible]

"Dogs," he added, "are able to range further and are used in rough territory. Also you don't have to muzzle them like you do hogs. The dogs hunt them for the sport of the thing."

It seems like we can't hardly move but some fellow pops up with a camera out of some place. And as you can see—the whole town gets to crowding around so thick that Marshal Dirks has sure got his hands full holding them back. We're all standing [illegible] that Chicago fellow said to—me with my arms crossed, Tom in the middle and then William—both [illegible] hanging onto their hats. Look at Jessie there! Jessie's our dog.

Harry E. Wilken

Folks are treating us and our Family's Whiskey mighty nice!

You'd think we was running for president or something—the way folks are making so much of us and the Wilken Family Whiskey. It must be everybody has got more excited than you'd think out of their being able to get the same whiskey as us distillers drink ourselves. But I don't know as it's just the right thing for us to be letting everybody make out like Tom and William and me should have all this credit coming to us. When you come down to it, I couldn't say as that special mildness and tastiness you're finding in our Family's Recipe was all our fault. You got to think of Dad. It was him and Grandad that started up the whole thing. I mean all we're doing is keeping the Wilken Family's recipe just so—exactly like Dad always told us. Well, maybe that's something!

Ann Presents Hearst Award to True Champion

(Picture from International News Ph [illegible])

IS SERIOUS BUSINESS WITH HIM

By ANN MARSTERS

Sam Neild, Jr., is a young man who takes his golf VERY seriously. He's the dark-eyed whiz from Pawtucket, R. I., who yesterday played such a breathtakingly fine game to win the Hearst New England junior championship at Sandy Burr.

[illegible] gone. He grew just a bit careless and dribbled a couple of shots.

Sam Neild never plays golf just for the fun of it. He [illegible] indulge in friendly [illegible], not even occasionally.

"Because," he said, "I wouldn't enjoy it. Golf isn't a game to me. It's a pretty serious business. The only time I ever play around a course is when I'm in competition."

SERIOUS

It sounds as though Sam is [illegible] unusual case. And when he says that "golf is a business" he doesn't mean that he has any intention of becoming a professional.

"I'm not interested in playing golf for my living," he said, as he looked fondly at the silver cup which had just been presented to him. "I want to keep on as an amateur and win as many championships as I can. That's why I don't waste my time PLAYING golf. I practice. I never miss a day at it. I sometimes practice a single shot for an hour at a time—so if that shot ever comes up in a match, I'll be ready for it. That's the only way to become a good golfer. You have to practice and practice and practice."

PLANNING

Neild is eighteen years old and graduated last year from St. Raphael's school in Pawtucket. This fall he plans to go to either Notre Dame or [illegible]

NOTRE DAME IS COLLEGE GOAL

"I'll surely go to one or the other," he said, "and I hope it'll be Notre Dame."

Discovery, Granville In 2-Horse Race

By BILL CORUM

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 27—Not since the sultry summer day on which the mighty Gallant Fox met the redoubtable Whichone in the Travers has this colony been so steamed up over the meeting of two horses as it is over Saturday's duel between Granville and Discovery.

[illegible]

Now the consensus of opinion here in Saratoga is that Granville will beat the old gentleman, especially if the track stays fast. That's the way the boys in the Dancing Kid's midnight paddock talk now at any rate. Whether they'll bet their money that way come Saturday afternoon is another matter.

[illegible] the bookmakers [illegible] They open Discovery [illegible] After that the money [illegible] make the price.

What surprises me is how so many of the boys can like Granville. The size of the field makes the Vanderbilt runner a mortal lock with me. I don't believe it's been weight half as much as disposition that's beaten the big chestnut in his recent in-and-out performances.

[illegible] every step of the way.

DICK POWELL SIGNS FOR 'ON WITH THE DANCE'

By HARRIET PARSONS

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 (US)—Warner Brothers aren't the only producers who regard Dick Powell as one of today's top box office names. Darryl Zanuck has just closed a deal whereby 20th Century-Fox will borrow the singing star from Warner's for "On With the Dance," scheduled as one of T-F-C's most lavish forthcoming productions. Roy Del Ruth will direct the Irving Berlin musical and Gene Markey is associate producer.

MYSTERY MOTHER IN STORK DERBY

MRS. A. TURNS UP, CLAIMING 10 CHILDREN

By FRED MENAGH

(King Features Syndicate Staff Writer.)

Copyright, 1936, King Features Synd., Inc.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 27—The standing of favorites in the Millar Will $1,000,000 Stork Derby, which underwent a shuffle when a previously unentered mother turned up claiming ten eligible children, received another shuffle today.

Still another Toronto mother was discovered claiming nine offsprings born in Toronto since the death of the late Charles Millar.

This claimant, of Scotch extraction, states positively the births of all her nine children are registered, as well as that of another baby born a few months too early to count in the Maternity Sweepstakes, who died a few days after birth.

All her children were born in Toronto.

Names Kept Secret

Hesitating to step into the public spotlight that has centered on the known entrants in the baby race, this mother and her pleasantly canny husband, also of Scotch origin, requested that their names be not published.

Newspapers are calling her Mrs. "A."

"We haven't even decided to send our names in to the Millar will executors," she explained. "But my husband and I have been talking it over quite a bit the last few weeks and I think we will notify the executors after the first of October. There is plenty of time yet."

Yesterday a hitherto unknown contender for the Millar prize appeared when a mother not previously heard from stated that she had 10 children, all born in Ontario and all registered since the death of the eccentric lawyer.

She said she had been married at 15, and her husband had deserted her several years ago. Since that time, however, she claims she has given birth to five children.

She insisted that her identity be kept a secret. She prefers to be known for the present only as Mrs. "X."

As the race draws to a close in its second last month, interest in the strange story deepens. Four mothers, including Mrs. "X" now claim 10 births each. Will a Mrs. "Z" be found to beat all four?

"I've been watching that place while you were in there—the place with all the people going in and out of it," said the cab driver. "What is it, a boarding house or something?"

The place he referred to is the home of Joseph and Grace Bagnato at 1097 Dundas street, West—the home where they reside with 13 of their 18 children. The other five are married and beginning to raise large families in homes of their own.

Mrs. Bagnato, mother of 23 children and expecting her 24th before October 31, is proud of the fact that at the age of 47 she already has five grandchildren. And before the year is out, two or three more will be coming along.

Mrs. Bagnato, who was married at 13, is considered an extremely good bet to either capture or share the million dollar Maternity Marathon prize.

She is short, dark and intense. She thinks and acts quickly, as do all the members of her family of her family. When a Bagnato wants to do something—he does it fast.

Sunday Dinner

Sunday is the big day in the Bagnato household. Invariably two or three of the married sons or daughters come in for dinner with their wives and children. It is at the dinner table at once.

Maybe you think Mrs. Bagnato nothing to have 24 and 25 seated h... a big job on her hands taking care of a houseful of children like that—preparing the meals and all. But think nothing of it. For that is only half of what she does. Mrs. Bagnato is the best and busiest Italian court interpreter in the City of Toronto.

Here's how her grocery order stacks up:

Bread—50 loaves a week.
Eggs—10 dozen a week.
Milk—1 gallon a day.
Spaghetti—5 cases every fortnight.
Olive Oil—2 gallons a week.
Potatoes—a 100-pound sack every week.
Flour—24 pounds a week.
Sugar—20 pounds a week.
Tomatoes—1 case a week.

"I can't look at a grocery store," said Mrs. Bagnato," without having to spend a $10 bill. It's awful!"

One breakfast alone requires five pounds of prunes. When the Bagnatos eat prunes, they eat prunes. They don't merely sample them.

In his youth Papa Bagnato won considerable renown in Toronto sporting circles as a lightweight boxer. His decidedly cauliflowered ears bear evidence of his fisticuffian experience.

He is the pride of the male members of the family, two of whom, 17 and 18, respectively are no slouches in the ring themselves.

In fact, the Bagnatos have not yet recovered from the shock of seeing Jimmy—he's 17—lose an opportunity to go across with the Olympic team as a lightweight boxer. They are convinced that the decision against him in the final tryouts was all wrong.

Like School Picnic

Next, let's take the Timlecks of Toronto. Now there's a family for you! Fourteen husky, good-lookin' children ranging in age from three months to 18 years, all the sons and daughters of Arthur H. and Alice Timleck, who manage to retain a rather youthful appearance themselves.

Mrs. Timleck at 37 has borne 17 children altogether. She is a typical business-like housewife, and a fond but firm mother. Her naturally curly hair is just beginning to show a grey streak here and there.

She has 10 children who are eligible in the "Stork Derby," and is not expecting any more—ever. The birth control clinic in Toronto has gained her confidence, and if she wins or even shares in the million dollar baby sweepstakes prize, she has announced her intention of campaigning for birth control.

The Timlecks—remember there are 16 in the family—reside in a huge, rambling old-fashioned house which has 12 high-ceilinged rooms. The place is described by Mrs. Timleck as "wonderful and cool in the summer time, but—B-r-r!—practically impossible to heat when winter comes."

There is plenty of room for everyone. And when a friend of Mrs. Timleck was recently widowed, left without funds and with a baby on her hands, Mrs. Timleck invited her to "come and live at my house." She gives her room and board free and even pays her a couple of dollars a week to help with the housework.

Feeds 16 on $10 a Wk.

Timleck, a blond, jolly giant of a man, is a good provider for his family. He is an expert marine mechanic—hasn't missed a day's work in years—and gives his family every possible comfort he can afford.

The problem of feeding a large family has been studied by Mrs. Timleck from a scientific standpoint—calories, vitamins and all that—with the result that she claims to be able to feed all those hungry mouths on $15 a week—less than a dollar per person. Her allowance is $28.50 a week.

Mrs. Madeleine Harrison, 38, mother of 14 children, goes Mrs. Timleck one better when it comes to paring down that budget. Youngish-looking, smart in appearance, she has a mouth full of even white teeth that put to shame any dental cream advertisement. She has the spending of her allowance figured down to such a fine point that her food bill amounts to but $20 or $25 every two weeks! Her biggest grocery expenses are:

Bread—8 loaves daily; 14 loaves on Saturday (23 loaves if it's a holiday week-end).
Milk—5 quarts a day.
Meat—a 10 or 12 pound roast every week.
Potatoes—25 pounds a week.

"Our baker says we are the best customers he has," smiles Mrs. Harrison.

Ambrose Harrison, husband and father, is a Toronto street car motorman who works on a night shift. When the newsreel men came around to "shoot" the Harrison family, Daddy Harrison, surrounded by his handsome blonde brood of 14 youngsters, smilingly announced to the world:

Prize Seekers Meet

(Pictures from King Features Service)

MRS. HARRISON — MRS. TIMLECK

At a recent outing all but one couple of the seven competing for the $1,000,000 Millar prize met and became good friends. Here are shown, at left, Mrs. Madeleine Harrison, mother of 14, and Mrs. Alice Timleck, mother of 17. Looking at them, would you believe it?

Tomorrow the Boston Evening American will carry the exclusive account of what happened when the "Stork Derby" mothers and fathers met one another for the first time at a specially arranged outdoor dinner in the country—the first time some of the wives had been out with their husbands since their marriage.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

Lively Variety Show Looms on Air Tonight

By N. F. T.

Above the average for summer time settings, that's how the Bingless program "Music Hall" and the well-known Vallee hour shape up for tonight.

In the former place, where Crosby usually masters the "mike" ceremonies, Bob Burns, the hill-man funmaker takes charge. Bob promises an appearance of Mary McCormic of grand opera, also some guest performing in a dramatic way by Merle Oberon and Pat O'Brien, of the screen realm. Bing will be listening from somewhere out in mid-Pacific where he and Mrs. Crosby are vacationing aboard ship.

"N. F. T."

VALLEE VARIETIES

Better than to be expected during these dog days on the dials, is the nice list of notables Rudy has ready and waiting to take a turn this evening. Eddie Green enters the spotlight for the comedy color—and the Negro jester was tops when last with Vallee.

Tonight his famous character in history for burlesquing will be Anthony, with a version of "Anthony and Cleopatra" in store.

Then there's Dr. Rockwell, too, more often than not good for lusty laughs. Mitzi Green, pretty and much grown up now, has imitations to contribute and Mary Boland makes known her intention to uncork some spirited dramatics to round out the sound show.

All of which gives the impression that said broadcast should be a snappier one than Rudy has reeled off in many moons.

O'Leary's Irish Minstrels, as being aired (WAAB) at 7:15 tonight, mixes a bit of politics with its melody making. Joseph Finnegan has a brief piece to speak concerning his candidacy for clerk of court selection by voters hereabouts.

SELECTED SONGS

Rubinoff turns to the famous songs of Oley Speaks for his solo on the "Musical Moments" broadcast (WNAC) this evening, from 9:30 to 9:45 p. m. He will play the immortal melody "Sylvia."

Jan Peerce, tenor, will be heard singing as his solo "My Faithful Stradivari."

A salute to Toronto and the Canadian National Exposition, will be offered when the mythical "Show Boat" ties up at that city tonight (WEEI) at 9:00 p. m.

Lanny Ross, tenor; Sam Hearn, comedian; Al Goodman's orchestra, and the rest of the Show Boat cast will take part during the sixty minutes.

'Shabby Propaganda'

Governor Landon Gives Raw Deal Publicity Its Right Name

IN THESE DAYS of widespread propaganda it is imperative that our teachers be kept free and that our educational institutions, our newspapers and the radio be kept independent, either from control of autocratic government or from the influence of any selfish interest.

There must not be censorship of what is spoken or written and, equally important, there must be no control of the source of news.

Another danger from propaganda is now present. It concerns widespread use of the machinery of the Federal Government to maintain the present Administration in power, and to bring into question the faith of the people in their way of life and in their form of government.

When money is forcibly taken by government from citizens and used to tear down those things most precious to our people we see propaganda in its most shabby form.

—From Governor Alfred M. Landon's speech at Chautauqua, N. Y., August 21, 1936.

ATTEMPTS of the Roosevelt Administration to exert control over the press, and to blanket the country with propaganda favorable to itself at taxpayers' expense, met a stern and DESERVED rebuke from Governor Landon at Chautauqua.

Outstanding among those attempts was an obscure provision of the National Recovery Act whereby the newspapers of the nation would have been placed quietly under the thumb of the Raw Deal and forced to conform to its edicts—if the Raw Deal had had its way.

This provision was defeated by the vigilance of the newspapers themselves, combining without regard to politics to safeguard the fundamental right of the freedom of the press. If the newspapers had not fought their own battle—and WON it—the press of this country would by this time have been able to express its views ONLY BY LICENSE OF THE ADMINISTRATION.

What price freedom then—not only of the press but of the people?

PERHAPS Governor Landon had this historic incident in mind when he rightly scored governmental efforts to interfere with the free expression of opinion.

Certainly there are enough examples of this policy abroad—in Germany, in Italy, in Russia—to make any American pause as he contemplates attempts to introduce that same policy in our own country.

AND Governor Landon is also right, COMPLETELY right, in characterizing Raw Deal propaganda with taxpayers' money as "propaganda in its most shabby form."

There are now, in defiance of law, hundreds of professional propagandists on the payrolls of various departments and agencies at Washington.

These devote the major part of their time to hymning the praises of the Administration.

They are disguised as "secretaries," or "research assistants" or what have you. But their function is to sell the Raw Deal, and the minor fact that their employment for that purpose is illegal has not deterred the Administration from so using them.

TAKE, too, the Federal Theater project—an undisguised propaganda activity. Or the Works Progress Administration films, all designed to put that wasteful boondoggling agency in the most favorable light before the public.

Or other propaganda activities, too numerous to mention here—each designed to keep the Administration in power, and each paid for with money wrung from the taxpayer or borrowed against his credit and that of future generations.

Governor Landon does well to express righteous indignation at this shameless perversion of public funds for political purposes.

It is a misuse of the people's money which is familiar to the dictator-ridden countries of Europe, but which Americans thought would never be seen here—and never was until the present Administration took a leaf out of Europe's book.

Public Library In Politics

THE public library should be kept out of politics. A man who not only realizes this, but DOES IT, is Truman Temple, Hartford, Conn., librarian, who recently closed a Federal Resettlement Administration photographic exhibit.

Said Librarian Temple:

"A tax-supported institution should not sponsor activity open to be interpreted as propaganda."

The Resettlement Administration, as the creature of Propagandist Tugwell, would scarcely lend itself to any photographic interpretation free of political purpose.

The Hartford incident should interest other librarians in other States, also theater operators asked to show New Deal propaganda films.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 27—Every man who daily spanks the typewriter in hopes of suffusing "the literary glow" doffs his dicer to the prodigious efforts of E. Phillips Oppenheim. At 70, he is still delivering the exciting stuff that most of us take to bed on a rainy night with a purr of content.

Not only has he completed his 50th year writing, but has finished his 100th novel. And again reveals himself the tycoon of thrills, the pontiff of plots. There are arty little nobodies who sneer Oppenheim is only a dependable hack. Then write their own books that will not sell.

"Oppie" is, indeed, a figure out of his glamorous chapters. A monoclist who loves to edge the Casino gambling tables, has a luxurious yacht always at anchor near his Riviera chateau that overlooks a sweep of the Mediterranean. And dictates his tales in a studio of all glass.

He dresses nightly, knows his carte du vin and Theodor, his friend in New York, brackets him with three of the top ring gourmets. Oppenheim is married to Elsie Hopkins, of Chelsea, and they usually return to America every few years, being enroute at the moment.

My favorite drummer boy, Jack Powell, has been artistically rewarded for taking the drum out of the orchestra and making his solos so rhythmic no foot can keep from twitching. He is appearing as a tympanist in municipal opera in St. Louis along with world famous divas.

Jack doesn't really need a drum. In fact, he more often than not leaves it to wander willy-nilly and harum-scarum about the stage rat-a-tat-tating on anything handy — chairs, tables, footlights or what not and, all the while, making music that tingles.

Observation: Harris Merton Lyon once wrote that New York was just a compact collection of country towns as pliable and villagey as the cross roads. For several weeks this summer we have stopped at 5 o'clock at a corner drug store on Broadway in the 70's for a favorite libation—lemon phosphate.

I began to notice the same people doing the same thing at the same hour, just as they do in your town and mine. The spinster walking her dog. The white mustached fellow who stops to gossip with the tobacco shop man. The twins who wait at the curb for father's bus. And so on.

In less than a month I had a bowing acquaintance with most of the corner. Outyonderish and folksy, two blocks from the swarm of a city's slum!

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has the least affectation of any nabob of his era. He is strictly Gay '90, wearing the full crowned derby of that period and the trousers with the 19-inch bottom. There is no snugness about the fit of his clothes and his colors are of outmoded vintage as viewed through the modern eye. He has a neatness always noticeable. And dignity plus.

There is in New York, too, what is called the Brooks Brothers type of dresser in contrast to the Grover Whalens and the Goadby Loews. The Brooks boys are the neatly dressed who make no concessions to fashion's furbelows. The clothes fit well but a trifle loosely, of sedate cloth. Colored collars are of outmoded vintage. As viewed through notice such men are consistently substantial. Men such as Owen D. Young, Gerard Swope, Messmore Kendall and Charles M. Schwab.

Thingumabobs: Leland Hayward, theatrical agent, is a runner-up for Ziegfeld's telegraphing in phone usage . . . A. P. Herbert, Punch punster, eats a plate of lettuce with each dinner . . . The Ritz perfumes its passenger elevators every two hours . . . Mrs. Harrison Williams' latest home is on the Isle of Capri . . . They are doing a biography of Albert Wiggin . . . Cole Porter likes to summer smack in mid-town New York.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

Conservative people impress me. Make me feel foolish and immature. Though I have lived with conservatives for 53 years, and know—all too well! — what most of their little ways mean, I'm still overawed by them.

Still I find myself envying their self-control, admiring their caution, thinking how strong and shrewd they are, how superior to impulsive mortals who plunge about making reckless experiments with new notions, new ways of living.

Which is, of course, an entirely wrong attitude.

For the conservative person is neither strong nor shrewd.

In short, he's afraid to LIVE, for living is the most changeable performance on earth.

AFRAID OF LIFE

He's just scared and stubborn. He's afraid to think new thoughts—or even listen to them. He's afraid to try new ways of living—or even admit that they're necessary.

Life is NEVER conservative. Life must do something new, something different, every minute. For Life means Growth . . . and you can't grow and stand still.

Then why do we admire conservatives if they are "'fraid cats?"

Because we are all "'fraid cats" at heart. We are all afraid to change—afraid to go on—afraid to do different, possibly dangerous, things. We are all cowards, longing for safety. And grateful to anyone who can make cowardice seem respectable.

Conservatives make cowardice seem intelligent and smart. They do not expose our timidity and ignorance by their superior daring.

WE MUST CHANGE

So we admire conservatives. We are grateful to conservatives. We copy their conduct and quote their conclusions. We gladly accept them as leaders. And, by the same token, we fear and hate the adventurers—the people who insist on growing, on changing, on doing new and difficult things.

We are easily impressed by conservatism . . . easily led by conservatives.

But both we and the conservatives whom we admire forget one dreadful fact. Life itself is not, cannot be conservative. Living things cannot be conservative. Living things MUST change, MUST experiment, MUST risk, MUST adventure. If they don't—they DIE.

Remember that when you admire a conservative . . . when you follow someone who believes that "the old ways are best—what was good enough for my father is good enough for me."

A man with such ideas is not living—he is DYING. If you adopt his policy, you also DIE.

'Dear Govt.'

By Winston Norman

MR. ROOSEVELT
c/o R. R. Company
Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

Don't let nobody see this letter, Mr. President, I got a Secrit to tell you. You better not have that meatin with Guvnor Landon durin your Drought Trip, becauze folks might figger that you come off Second Best.

A funny thing, Mr. President, there is some folks that just won't beleive you are a Farmer. Take my Next Door Neighbor for instince, he says to me, "Say, did you hear the latest joke about the President's drought trip?"

"No," I says, "what is it?"

"Well," he says, "it seems there was a Travelin Salesman, his name was Roosevelt—"

That made me mad, Mr. President, I told him you wasen't no Travelin Salesman, becauze you dident have nothin to sell. I told him you was just travelin around to see how the Voters felt, and if they felt like voteing for you after the trip was over, you couldent stop them from doin that, could you?

"The real reason Mr. Roosevelt has took this trip," I says, "he wants to study the U. S. Farm Problem."

"Hump," says my Neighbor, "first time I ever knowed a man could study Farming from the window of a train."

"But Mr. Roosevelt don't have to learn nothin from his train window," I says, real mad. "He can learn Farmin out of a book by Mr. Wallace. Mr. Wallace knows all about Farming," I says, "he read it in a book by somebody else."

"If such is the case," says my Neighbor, "why dident the President just stay home & read a book?"

Right then I give up, Mr. President. I couldent seem to think of no good reason for your trip, can you? I seen that it might be a big Mistake for you to have a confrince with Guvnor Landon.

The Farmers would know you hadent learnt nothin from the window of your Train, and they would suspeck that Guvnor Landon was tellin YOU about the Farm Problem, instead of YOU tellin him.

Yours worried,
W. NORMAN.

Our War Prophets

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Edwin C. Hill

Events have a way of stubbornly ignoring both theories and experience. The late Tad Dorgan, brilliant cartoonist for the Hearst newspapers, had a cartoon in which an ejected tenant was landing on his ear in the middle of the street, with his furniture flying through the air after him. A sympathetic friend was saying: "Joe, they can't throw you out for not paying your rent."

It works both ways — on the side of the angels as well as the demoniac powers. Bernard Baruch, the financier, an astute and informed observer, returns from Europe with the following observation: "The nations are more suspicious of one another, more grimly embittered and arming more fiercely than ever before." He sees little hope of avoiding another world war and an all-around world smash-up.

On the same day, appears the following dispatch from London: "The market reveals a generally firm and hopeful tone. British industrials are higher than in any week since 1932. The fear of long-term commitments seems to be passing. One is beginning to sense in British finance the traditional quiet assurance, complacency, in fact, that marked the old days of ascendant empire."

Even in the more vulnerable and troubled nations of the Continent, the bourse has failed to reflect the agitation, one might almost say panic of the chancellery. In our own country, the rise in stocks is at odds with every actuality of theoretical finance—increasing governmental intrusion, an appalling national debt, tragic unemployment, political uncertainty and bedevilment and a steadily widening "lunatic fringe."

PRE-WAR PANIC

When the World War was impending, the markets got a whiff of it quite a few months ahead of the rest of us. There was an almost panicky slump in stocks and there was fear, "in solution" and not precipitated, one might say. Curiously enough, after that pistol shot at Sarajevo, in 1914, there was only one clear and articulate voice in America which explained what it meant. The late Phil Francis, editorial writer for the Hearst newspapers, writing a few days after the shooting, recorded an amazingly accurate prophecy of the world holocaust. He fumed and raged because no one could understand.

At the same time, a distinguished American banker, writer and economist, returning from Europe, was quoted as following, in an interview:

"Sound opinion in Europe is that the Sarajevo incident will be easily isolated. None of the European powers want war and I think I am in a position to allay any fears which our people may have on that score."

The banker, an able and astute man, had been sitting in with great European diplomats and financiers. Old Phil Francis had been commuting between his battered roll top desk in the offices of the San Francisco Examiner and Stillman's hospitable saloon across the street. He had studied international diplomacy in the Tuolumne and Placer county mining camps and the San Joaquin swamp towns.

And I will lay it down flat, here and now, and meet all comers in any reasonable wager, that the files of the Hearst newspapers of the summer of 1914, will prove that Phil Francis plumbed the future more deeply and accurately, in that tragic year, than any or all of the statesmen, professors and economists who had ringside seats at the war preliminaries.

WHY AND HOW?

One might paraphrase Shakespeare and ask, "Where is prophecy bred—in the heart or in the head?" In the heart, in the case of the banker, cited above. He didn't want a war and he indulged in "wishful thinking." In the head, in Phil's case. He didn't want a war any more than the banker, but as a first-class newspaperman he had the detachment peculiar to his craft. Even as good a newspaperman as Phil Francis isn't apt to have a sizable financial stake in war or peace.

He was clear and footloose for some ground-and-lofty thinking. An advantage which those who have given larger hostages to fortune aren't apt to have. Perhaps more important was the fact that Phil Francis was really a profound student of history. His foot on Stillson's brass rail completed a circuit and induced a flow of erudition, wisdom and prophecy which I have never seen equalled in any frock-coated diplomatic huddle. And then he would step across the street and put it in the paper.

I have been searching, without luck, for a pertinent observation by Roger Bacon, that incredible Franciscan monk of the thirteenth century, in which he notes, in effect, that there is a latent fore-knowledge, or wisdom in masses of people, which may not become articulate, but which provides a more accurate guide than the conclusions of philosophers and statesmen. Elsewhere, he wrote:

"If I had my way, I should burn all the books of Aristotle. Cease to be ruled by dogmas and authorities; look at the world."

The interesting point is that, in the historic box score, he outranks all the lay prophets. Take a look at his prophecy of the steamship, automobile and the airplane. That is proof.

Are the world speculators, discounting the signs of world war, responsive to this sub-stratum of race wisdom which Roger Bacon notes? Or are they short-sighted, fast-working men who haven't time to inform themselves about historic cause and effect and probability? It's something to think about.

One might easily incline to the latter point of view, but it happens that the wise men have been wrong about as often as the hit-and-run philosophers who are out to get theirs.

What's the answer? Is there any really prophetic voice or index in the world?

That's That!

A picture from war-torn Spain showing COMMUNISTS in Madrid SHOOTING AT A STATUE OF CHRIST shows what will happen in the United States if the Reds ever get the upper hand here. This picture portrays the true spirit of Communism. Wherever the Communists gain a foothold, the first target of their venom is religion.

It makes no difference about the kind of religion. Communism tries to destroy it. In Russia, the first thing the Reds did after they established their tyranny was to try to drive religion out of the country.

They are running true to form in Spain. Murdering priests, persecuting Christians and, destroying churches, their rage is directed at every symbol of religion.

Communism, in theory may be a philosophy of government. But the brand which is rampant in the world today is an epidemic of destruction. The goal of Communism is the destruction by violent revolution of every democratic form of government and every religion, and the substitution therefor of a system of savage, atheistic tyranny.

The kind of government which the Russian people have is their own business. But when they undertake to spread their ideas throughout the world and foist their brand of despotism upon every nation on earth, and foment revolutions to destroy government and religion in other nations, Communism becomes a menace to humanity.

And don't fool yourselves that Russian Reds are not spreading the Red menace. It has been disclosed in Madrid that Russian people have donated approximately 13,000,000 dollars to help the Spanish Communist government in it's civil war against the Fascists.

Nobody knows how much money Soviet Russia has sent into the United States to foment riots, strikes, and spread propaganda stirring up class hatred and trying to incite revolution here.

United States Senator Cary of Wyoming, addressing an American Legion convention in his State, warned against the danger confronting every group of American citizens through attempts of the New Dealers to substitute European "isms" for our form of government.

Calling attention to what has happened in Russia and in Germany, he asked how long an organization such as the American Legion would last under such government, and what chance labor unions would have to exist. Everybody knows the answer. Communism is as deady a poison to patriotism and to organized labor as it is to religion.

From Pueblo, Colo., comes an announcement which shows how the Roosevelt New Deal has brought "prosperity" to the country. The Western National Bank, of which U. S. Senator Alva Adams, Democratic leader, is vice-president, is to go into voluntary liquidation because of "prevailing low rates for money in contrast with higher taxes and overhead charges."

In other words, it can't make enough money to keep on operating. Its June 30 financial statement showed deposits of a little over 2,000,000 dollars, cash and government securities totaling one and one-fourth millions, and $99,000, of loans and discounts.

All over the country, banks are bulging with money AND CREDIT but Uncle Sam is the only borrower and he has hammered interest rates down to such a low level that lending to him is not profitable.

Bank deposits in New York City, in the year ending June 30, increased to 16 and one-half billion dollars—the highest point in history.

But the increase is NOT the result of prosperity. It is due to hoarding and the New Deal policy of inflating credit by governmental borrowing and squandering.

Inflating credit is just as dangerous as inflating currency.
